SUMMARY.

An Italian official report states that the battle on the Julian front has been renewed with violence.

The Italians have captured an important position south-west of Okroglo.

The battle is raging north-eastward of Gorizia. The Italians on Wednesday took 1658 prisoners belonging to 10 regiments.

The enemy gained an initial success between Brestovizza Valley and the sea, but the Italians re-established the line.

The heavy bombardment of the Italian communications around Gorizia showed that the Austrians were alive to their importance.

The enemy continually brought up reserves and enormous numbers of machine-guns.

He sacrificed regiment after regiment in the hope of weakening the Italian attacks.

The Italians meanwhile pitilessly shelled the Austrian caves and dugouts.

The Austrian offensive is aimed at breaking the circle of steel which is gradually closing around Hermada.

The Italian air fleet on Tuesday night effectively bombarded Pola, and returned safely.

It is reported from Washington that the Allies are likely to undertake a new strong campaign against Austria.

Strong pressure is being extended to induce America to declare war against Austria.

The "Cologne Gazette" foreshadows a further Austrian retirement.

Artillery fire continues on the Ypres front. Enemy aeroplanes bombarded various places, including the hospital area.

The British aeroplanes and balloons cooperated with the artillery all day long on Wednesday.

The Germans launched two attacks on the California Plateau, which were repulsed by the French.

Lively artillery duels are proceeding on both banks of the Meuse (Verdun sector).

A German official report states: The northern wing and centre of the Twelfth Russian army is rapidly retreating.

Several Grand Dukes, including the Grand Duke Michael, have been detained in Petrograd in consequence of a plot.

A Russian official message states: Our refirement along the Gulf of Riga continues. Submarines shelled the Riga coast.

The fall of Riga has startled Russia. The situation is said to be grave owing to the superiority of the enemy artillery.

The Russian lines are to be shortened, and a new front presented from Friedrichstadt to the Gulf.

The food crisis in Petrograd is reported to be serious. Soldiers and civilians are suffering privations.

A Turkish communique states: There is an intense bombardment of our positions at Gaza, in Southern Palestine.

A submarine appeared two miles off Scarborough, at 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening, and shelled the shore.

Three people were killed and five injured. The material damage was slight.

Mine sweepers opened fire and pursued the raider, which at once submerged.

During the past week 20 ships of over 1600 tons, and three under that tonnage, were sunk.

The Japanese Mission appeared in the United States Congress, and was enthusiastically received.

Baron Ishii, in an address, warned Americans against plots to sow discord between the United States and Japan.

"We bring an assurance," he said, "of Japan's fullest support in order to defeat Germany."

According to Copenhagen advices, Constantine has issued a proclamation denouncing M. Venizelos.

The "Vossische Zeitung" says that Constantine regards himself as still King of Greece, and will return to the throne.

Mr. Fuller issued a statement yesterday declaring that a general strike was planned immediately after the last general election.

The plan, he says, was formed at a series of secret meetings, and involved calling out the unions without consulting members.

The present upheaval, Mr. Fuller continues, was not an ordinary industrial strike, but a political revolt.

Therefore, he declares, the unions must go back to work, the Government's terms being definite.

"The tramway services are now equal to requirements," said the Chief Commissioner yesterday.

The tramway revenue collected on Wednesday was a record since the strike started.

A volunteer worker was shot in the right hand while working on a punt at Miller's Point yesterday.

There are now over 300 volunteer workers at the Mortlake Gasworks. They are reported to be shaping well.

A man was committed for trial at the Central Police Court on a charge of inciting to strike.

An attempt has been made to wreck a train between Bellambi and Corrimal. An obstruction on the line was discovered.

As a result of the strike the Otford railway deviation works have been closed down, some 300 hands being affected.

The registration and the preference clause in the award of the Trolly, Draymen, and Carters' Union were cancelled yesterday.

Mr. Justice Heydon said that the doctrine of "black" as developed in the present strike meant civil war.

Mr. Justice Higgins has cancelled the clause providing for preference to unionists in the award of the Waterside Workers' Federation.

An application for the de-registration of the Waterside Workers' Federation was adjourned till Monday.

The cancellation of the preference clause in the waterside workers' award has met with approval in shipping circles.

Steps are likely to be taken to form a transport workers' union, comprising wharf-labourers, carters, and coal-lumpers.

Following upon the raid on the I.W.W. premises in Sussex-street, the police have handed over the premises to the owner.

After sitting continuously for 28 hours, from 4 p.m. on Wednesday, the Assembly adjourned last night till Tuesday next.

The whole of the time was practically occupied by the Opposition stonewalling the Estimates.

The conference of P.P. Boards yesterday fixed the scale of charges to be imposed upon travelling stock.

The East-West railway will probably be opened early in November. About 25 miles of the track remain to be completed.

A large quantity of copra was burnt by a fire at one of the Harbour Trust sheds at Miller's Point yesterday.

A fire broke out in chemical works at Erskineville last evening, a portion of the premises being gutted.

A meeting at the School of Arts protested against the proposed tax on single men and widowers without children who have not enlisted.

The whole of the engineers employed at the Clyde works are now out, about 70 men being affected.

The repairing of locomotives is to be proceeded with, the company having a sufficient number of artisans.

Professor Macintyre has been in touch with the Government in an effort to effect a settlement of the strike.

The Labour Council last night urged all unionists to refrain from committing any acts of violence.

The employees in the maintenance department of the City Council have received a week's notice, owing to the shortage of tar.

The Murray has risen to such an extent that Wentworth is practically isolated.

Investment stocks changed hands freely on the Stock Exchange yesterday, at generally firm prices.

In the Mining market, Barrier stocks were firmer. Edna May Deeps were weaker.

There was another fall in the values of sheep. The market for cattle was steady. Heavy bullocks realised over £20 per head.

Forecast.—Generally fine, excepting for some isolated thunder showers; westerly winds.

THE HOUSE FOR HONEST VALUES,
CENTRAL-SQUARE, SYDNEY.

"DAVID JONES" STANDS FOR DEPENDABLE GLOVES THAT ARE MODERATELY PRICED.

The fact that ladies who once make a test of David Jones' moderately-priced gloves invariably continue their patronage proves beyond all gainsay that the qualities are dependable and the values the soundest.

Gloves have risen—and are still rising—in price more than any other dress commodity, owing to shortage in skins and shortage of skilled labour.

Each new shipment means a further advance, therefore to purchase for Summer requirements now means a certain saving in price.

Many so-called kid gloves at the present time are made from lamb skins; these lack the elasticity and hard wearing properties of kid skins.

ALL DAVID JONES' GLOVES ADVERTISED OR SOLD AS KID GLOVES ARE GUARANTEED TO BE MADE FROM GENUINE KID SKINS.

Glove Dept. is situated on ground floor. If ordering by post be sure to state size and colour.

Ladies' 2-dome Real French Kid Gloves, in white only. All sizes, 3/11 Pair.

THE COMING OF SPRING IN TRUE MAGNIFICENCE AT FARMER'S.

Attracting crowds of delighted admirers are the really wonderful displays of the Season's Fashions, 1917-18, throughout our House. Windows, Salons, and Departments are dressed with especial care to give women a clear idea of what is absolutely correct for 1917-18 wear. THE QUICKEST WAY to get to the Grocers, according to the facetious small boy, is to RUN.

Just so.
And when you arrive the quickest and safest way to get the Cheese that will please is to say:

"REX" LUNCHEON CHEESE.

The outdoor worker, the busy business man, the Women Folk, and even the Children, praise this appetising Sandwich spread.

It has a flavour that hits a warm spot on every palate, whilst as an aid to digestion it is highly recommended.
"Rex" Cheese is sold by all Grocers in Solderless tins and enamel jars. No other is just as good.

SAVE THE LIDS.

No more of the decorated tops are now being packed at our factory—an economy that enables us to avoid raising the price of "Rex" Cheese. Save the lids now obtainable—one will do for several tins.

ARNOTT'S FAMOUS MILK ARROWROOT BISCUITS.

THE FOOD FOR AGED PEOPLE.

FOR AGED PERSONS AND INVALIDS these delicious and easily-digested biscuits form a most valuable food, as they can be taken at any time with great benefit, either in their natural state or made into puddings. By the addition also of boiling water and a little sugar and milk they will be found to be very tasty and satisfying. Numerous instances have come to our knowledge of elderly persons who make them their sole diet, and who have for years taken no other food but them. They are so light, palatable, and nutritious that they can be taken as a supper dish with great advantage by people of the most delicate constitution, whilst as a satisfying and supporting dish for breakfast, prepared like milk sops, they will be found unsurpassed. AS A SNACK FOR LUNCH or for afternoon tea they will also be found most excellent.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before Sir Edmund Barton, Mr. Justice Isaacs, and Mr. Justice Rich.)

A WHEAT CONTRACT.

Judgment was delivered in the case in which Christopher James Gelling appealed against a judgment of the Full Court setting aside a verdict for £2328 2s 6d which had been entered for the plaintiff against Godwin George Crespin and George Henry Claude Crespin as damages for non-performance of a contract for delivery of wheat.

In this case a contract was made between Gelling and Sons, Ltd., and G. G. Crespin and Son whereby the latter agreed to sell and deliver 15,000 bags of wheat of season 1914-15 at 4s 0½d per bushel. The wheat was not delivered, and Gelling and Sons was voluntarily wound up, having been deprived of the profits of the transaction. The liquidator transferred the benefit of the contract to the plaintiff, Christopher James Gelling, who claimed £3329. A verdict was entered by consent, all questions of law and fact being reserved for the Full Court. The defendants claimed that the contract was void under the Wheat Acquisition Act, 1914, and the Full Court set aside the verdict.

The High Court allowed the appeal with costs, and ordered the Full Court's judgment to be set aside and a verdict entered for the plaintiff.

QUEENSLAND REFERENDUM LAW.

Judgment was delivered in the case of Taylor v the Attorney-General of Queensland and others, this being a special case stated in original jurisdiction in consequence of the Court's order made on May 4 by consent of the parties.

Mr. Justice Barton said the Court had to consider the following five questions:—(1) Was the Queensland Constitution Amendment Act of 1908 a valid and effective Act of Parliament? (2) Was the Queensland Parliamentary Bills Referendum Act of 1908 a valid and effective Act of Parliament? (3) Was there power to abolish the Legislative Council of Queensland by Act passed in accordance with the provisions of the Parliamentary Bills Referendum Act, 1908? (4) Was the referendum taken on May 5, 1917, a valid referendum? (5) How and in what manner were the costs of the proceedings to be borne and paid? After answering the first two questions in the affirmative, his Honor dealt with the third, stating that in 1914 a bill for abolishing the Legislative Council was twice in successive sessions passed by the Legislative Assembly, and twice rejected by the Legislative Council. Seeing that it proposed the abolition of that branch of the Legislature, was it such a bill as might validly be submitted to the process authorised by the Referendum Act? Seeing that the latter Act was unrestricted, he did not see how the fact of the bill of 1916 being a bill to deal with the Legislative Council could be held to place it beyond legislative authority. His Honor therefore held that there was power to abolish the Legislative Council by an Act passed in accordance with the Referendum Act. The third question was answered in the affirmative.

The fourth question really raised a controversy as to the validity of the 14th section of the Commonwealth Electoral (Wartime) Act, 1917, and in the circumstances the Court thought it unnecessary to answer it. They were also of the opinion that there should be no costs.

In a concurring judgment, Mr. Justice Isaacs said that the Parliamentary Bills Referendum Act was passed in consequence of a great constitutional crisis involving the relations of the two Houses, the Ministry, and the Governor. Apparently it was enacted as a method of preventing the recurrence of such a situation. It was passed avowedly as an amendment of the Constitution of both Houses unanimously, and was reserved for his Majesty's assent. To declare such an enactment constitutionally impossible was no doubt within the function of a Court, but the consequences would be so momentous that only the very clearest conviction of its invalidity would justify such a declaration. The effect of the Act was that both Houses were left unaltered in composition and affirmative powers, but the change effected by the Act consisted in no longer requiring as an absolute condition of legislation the concurrence of both Houses in advising the Crown. After two failures to agree, the advice of the Assembly was sufficient, provided there was obtained the approval of the majority of the electors at a referendum. The Act made no change in respect of the mode of obtaining the Royal assent.

Mr. Justice Isaacs read a concurring judgment of Mr. Justice Powers, and Mr. Justice Rich concurred on behalf of himself and Mr. Justice Duffy.

LEAVE TO APPEAL.

Mr. Leverrier, K.C., appearing with Mr. Rogers, instructed by Messrs. Dalrymple and Blain, moved for special leave to appeal in the case of Axel E. Blom v the Commonwealth from a decision of the Full Court holding that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover damages for the refusal of the Customs officials to grant a clearance to a vessel in port. Leave was granted.

(Before Mr. Justice Duffy.)

Mr. Windeyer, K.C., and Mr. Tighe, instructed by Messrs. Cecil A. Coghlan and Co., appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Watt and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Messrs. The jury returned a verdict for defendant company.

TROUBLE OVER A PICTURE SHOW.

Watt v Malouf.

Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by Mr. George Croaker, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Blackett, K.C., and Mr. Patrick, instructed by Messrs. M'Coy and M'Coy, for the defendant. This was an action brought by Peter Bell Johnston Watt, trading as the Structural Engineering Company, against Joseph George Malouf, to recover £88 12s 8d, claimed by plaintiff to be due to him by defendant for certain goods supplied in connection with the erection of a picture show building at Balmain. It was mentioned that this was the second time the case had come before a jury, though the amount claimed was not the same.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury of four.)

ACTION AGAINST A CONSTABLE.

Unsworth v Baxter.

Mr. H. G. Edwards and Mr. Hardwick, instructed by Mr. J. B. Moffatt, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. A. Thomson, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett), for the defendant. This was an action brought by Walter Unsworth, a wharf labourer, against William Julius Baxter, police constable, to recover compensation for alleged assault. Plaintiff's case was that on Thursday, May 10, he was working at Birt's wharf, Woolloomooloo Bay, and during the day he went, with other wharf labourers, to an adjacent restaurant for a meal. He had no sooner sat down than defendant, according to plaintiff's story, came up to him, and, placing his hand on his shoulder, said, "You are the man I want." Plaintiff also said that defendant, after asking him "What he had up his sleeve," proceeded to search him, as if he were a suspected criminal. This was the assault complained of, and plaintiff complained that the action of the constable was quite unwarranted, and had injured his good name and reputation. Damages were laid at £500.

Defendant pleaded not guilty, and gave evidence that, having noticed plaintiff's left sleeve, which was rolled up, was rather bulky, he followed him from the wharf to the restaurant, and, without touching him in any way, asked, "What have you got up your sleeve; it looks rather bulky." Plaintiff replied that witness could search him if he liked; but the latter said that the proper place for that was at the police office. Plaintiff then rolled down his sleeve to satisfy witness that nothing was hidden there, and there was no truth whatever in the statement that he searched him at any time. This statement was corroborated by Constable Higgins, who saw defendant in the restaurant.

The case stands part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

TESTATOR'S FAMILY MAINTENANCE.

Re L. H. Lumley, deceased.

Mr. L. J. M'Kean, instructed by Mr. Thomas Green, appeared for Cyril Reeves, next friend of Mary Violet Toohey, aged 9, and Agnes May Toohey, aged 7, who applied for their adequate provision out of the estate of their late mother, Lilian Hanora Lumley. Mr. F. R. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. T. Rose and Dawes, appeared for the respondent, Arthur Edward Lumley, the second husband of the testatrix. Mrs. Toohey died at Lewisham; she bequeathed a brooch to her eldest daughter and a gold bangle to her younger sister. The rest of her real and personal estate was left by testatrix to her husband, whom she appointed guardian of her two daughters. The net value of her estate was about £160. The applicants asked that they might be placed under the care and control of their grandmother, Mary Ellen Toohey.

The respondent, Lumley, opposed the application. He wished to retain the custody of the younger child, who had been living with him and his late wife. He was prepared to maintain both children. He would allow the children two-thirds of his wife's estate, excluding a piece of land at Bankstown, purchased out of his earnings.

His Honor made an order appointing Mrs. Mary Ellen Toohey guardian of the elder child, and Mr. Lumley guardian of the younger child. The latter is to undertake that the younger child shall be allowed to visit Mrs. Toohey for 14 days, at her expense, during the summer holidays. Each child is to receive £40 out of the estate.

DIVORCE COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Gordon.)

BRUMMELL v BRUMMELL.

Ellen Brummell petitioned for a judicial separation from Andrew Brummell, grazier, of Croydon, near Walgett, on the ground of habitual drunkenness and cruelty. Respondent denied the allegations, and cross-petitioned for a decree of restitution of conjugal rights.

His Honor granted the wife a decree of judicial separation on the ground of cruelty, and dismissed the husband's petition for decree of restitution of conjugal rights. The wife was given custody of the children, and the husband was ordered to pay costs.

Mr. Mack (instructed by Messrs. Weaver and Allworth, for Messrs. Potts and Briscombe, of Narrabri) appeared for the petitioner, and Mr. Hardwick (instructed by Mr. E. R. Abigail) for the respondent.

BROWN v BROWN.

Annie Lydia Brown (formerly James) petitioned for a decree of judicial separation from William Brown on the ground of misconduct, which he denied.

Mr. Noble (instructed by Mr. Bloomfield) appeared for the petitioner, and Mr. Maxwell (instructed by Mr. H. L. Browne) for the respondent.

QUINOLOGIST CASE.

SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENT.

There was a sensational development yesterday in connection with the suit of Albert Edward Cockram against Theodore Charles Trautwein and David Price regarding the ownership of the racehorse Quinologist. Mr. Justice Duffy had reserved judgment in the case, but on the application of the plaintiff it was re-opened yesterday, and one of the witnesses for the defence admitted having given incorrect evidence at the previous hearing, also alleging that Trautwein was a party to the incorrect statement.

The plaintiff's case rested largely on whether the sale of Quinologist, in January, 1916, by which the horse passed out of the joint ownership of Cockram and Trautwein, and was bought by Price, who later resold it to Trautwein, was a bona fide sale. James Jacobs, a stock buyer, had given evidence as to what took place at the sale at Inglis and Son's, and it was in regard to his evidence that the case was re-opened.

At the request of Mr. Windeyer, K.C., counsel for plaintiff, Mr. Trautwein went into the box, and was questioned as to how Jacobs came to be a witness in the case. He said he first met Jacobs at the Easter show this year, and subsequently sold him a thoroughbred stallion for £275. When going to the station to take delivery of the horse, Jacobs had mentioned that he was at the Quinologist sale, and offered to give evidence. Some weeks later the witness saw Jacobs, and asked him to go to his solicitors and make a statement as to what he knew of the sale. He thought they had talked over the sale before going to the office of the solicitors, Messrs. Barry and Norris.

James Jacobs was then called, and on being asked if he wished to correct any of his previous evidence, said that he attended so many horse sales that it was more than likely he had confused them.

His Honor: Do you want to now say that you did not attend the Quinologist sale at all?

Witness: Yes. He added, in answer to Mr. Windeyer, that he had found this out for the first time on the Wednesday after he got a subpoena to appear in Court. On getting the subpoena he had gone straight to Trautwein's Hotel.

Questioned as to how he came to give evidence, Jacobs said that he had told Trautwein that Mr. M'Leod wanted him to buy Quinologist for him, and Trautwein had told the witness something about the horse having cost 1000 guineas. This took place in a sulky on the way to the station, and at that time Trautwein did not know what evidence the witness could actually give.

Mr. Windeyer: I am going to charge you, quite plainly, that what you say just now is something concocted within the past 24 hours.

Counsel then referred to evidence given previously, in which Jacobs, referring to the conversation in the sulky, had said: "Mr. Trautwein then asked me what I knew about the case, and I told him."

The witness said that this was incorrect.

His Honor: You understand that if it turns out that it is correct you will be in danger of being imprisoned.

Witness: No. It is not correct. Mr. Trautwein really told me all that occurred at the sale. He said, "Will you give evidence if I want you?" I said "Yes, if my services are any use, you can call me." He said he wanted to be quite firm about what was said about the horse costing 1000 guineas in the land.

His Honor: You heard what he said, and you thought that, to do him a friendly turn, you would say it?—Your Honor, I honestly believed I was there.

Do you want me to believe that you remember all that took place, and the auctioneer's conversation, and about Trautwein having said the horse was sound, and cost 1000 guineas, when you were not there at all?—No.

You may as well tell it all. Did he want you to swear it, and did you say you would?—Yes.

Further questioned by Mr. Windeyer, the witness said he was instructed after the sale by Mr. McLeod, to buy Quinologist for 100 guineas if possible. He afterwards reported to Mr. M'Leod that the horse was not for sale at any price. The witness added that Trautwein knew he was going to tell a lie, but that he pretended to Trautwein's solicitor that it was the truth. He and Trautwein had not made any arrangement the previous day as to what to say on this occasion. He had shown Trautwein the subpoena, and they had met later at Mr. Shand's chambers.

His Honor: You found out that the perjuring you and he had devised had been discovered. It is impossible for me to believe you did not discuss it.

Witness: Trautwein asked me if I was going to stick to my evidence, and I said "Yes."

Mr. Windeyer: Did Trautwein give or offer you money to give evidence?—No; he never offered me anything.

Mr. Innes, K.C. (appearing for the defendant in the absence of Mr. Shand, K.C.): Is it not a fact that in Mr. Shand's chambers yesterday you persisted in your story that you were at the sale?—No.

Did you not inform Trautwein outside the court this morning that you were at the sale? —No.

Trautwein went back into the witness-box and denied that there was any truth in the allegation that he had asked Jacobs to give false evidence. When asked at Mr. Shand's chambers the previous day how he could have been at the sale when three police officers said he was elsewhere on that date, Jacobs had said they must be mistaken, and persisted that he was at the sale.

His Honor said he was not going to assume that, because one witness had committed perjury, all the others had. Would Mr. Windeyer like time for further investigation of other evidence?

Mr. Windeyer said that would be an almost hopeless task. It was only by accident that they had been able to find out from official records where Jacobs was on the day of the sale. He argued that in any case it was obvious that there had been collaboration between Jacobs and Trautwein.

His Honor: If I believe Jacobs there is no doubt you ought to get judgment.

It was eventually decided to hear further evidence.

Alexander A. McLeod, manager of Canowie Station, stated that he read of the sale of Quinologist for 40 guineas, and commissioned Jacobs to try and buy it for 100 guineas, but did not succeed in getting the horse.

Evidence was called in support of the defendant's account as to what transpired at the auction sale.

His Honor said that in view of the curious development in the case he would give the plaintiff an opportunity of having the issue tried by a jury if this was desired. After consultation, Mr. Windeyer announced that they would be glad if his Honor would adjudicate.

The Court adjourned till this morning.

"I have been residing in Bondi Junction for a period of 19 years.

"I am as well-known as an old resident can be. There is not a business man in Bondi whom I do not know, and who does not know me.

"I have filled the important trustworthy position of night watchman to the leading business people of Bondi Junction for 19 years. I am also a special constable at Bondi.

"The position is one that it has a very trying effect on one's nerves at night, and recently I have had grave signs of nervous breakdown and ill-health.

"I tried many remedies and sources of advertised aid trying to get my nerves right, but I failed.

"Clements Tonic was recommended to me by one who had used it and I agreed to try it.

"I took several bottles and am now well. Weak nerves, bad rest by day, poor appetite, are now things of the past.

"I follow my work at night without the slightest nerve tension.

"I recommend it to everyone. I would like to know, too, where there is a better medicine.

I am, Gentlemen,

ON THE LAND.

STOCK RESERVES.

QUESTION OF FINANCE.

The conference of representatives of the Pastures Protection Boards, which was convened at the suggestion of the Minister for Lands to formulate a scheme under which the boards would be responsible for the control and maintenance of the travelling stock reserves and routes, concluded its sittings yesterday. As a result a complete scheme will now be laid before the Minister, and, if it meets with his approval, will be embodied in an amendment of the P.P. Act. This long debated and vexatious question will then at last be settled, and the travelling stock reserves will become of far greater value and utility to stockowners than they have been in the past. While there was marked difference of ideas in regard to some of the methods on which the new system should be conducted, a spirit of compromise prevailed, and what should be a sound workable scheme was agreed upon. Yesterday the two points upon which sharp diversity of opinion existed—the rates to be imposed upon travelling stock and the manner in which they should be imposed—were settled. The different standpoint arising from different conditions in the Eastern and other divisions was met by an agreement upon different rates being applied in the respective divisions.

The chairman of the P. P. Boards' council of advice (Mr. F. A. Mackenzie) presided in the morning, and Mr. J. G. Fletcher in the afternoon.

Delegates representing the different sections met in committee prior to the conference continuing. For the Eastern Division, Mr. Badgery stated delegates had not been able to agree to a scale of charges. Mr. Fletcher, for the Central Division, said delegates in that section had agreed to support the majority of the boards in the Central Division in favour of travelling rates of 1d per 100 per mile for sheep and 6d per 100 per mile on large stock. Mr. Johnson (Western) said the western delegates had agreed in favour of a minimum of ½d per 100 sheep and 2d on large stock, with a maximum of 1d on sheep and 6d on large stock, leaving the amount to the discretion of the boards.

To test the feeling of the conference in regard to a flat rate, Mr. H. Hill (Carcoar) moved "that each board strike a special maximum rate of 1s per 100 on sheep and 1s per 10 head of cattle, and that in the event of there being no stock to assess the holdings be assessed at their carrying capacity on the above basis, the rate to be used expressly for the maintenance and improvement of reserves."

This motion was seconded by Mr. A. G. M'Kechnie (Queanbeyan), but was rejected by a very large majority.

The position of the coastal boards was discussed at some length. Some of the eastern boards were agreeable to the scale of charges proposed by the central boards, while some 16 boards opposed strongly the rates suggested. Finally, the following motion, which embodied the desires of both sections, was agreed upon:—

"That in the Western Division it is agreed that there should be a travelling stock rate on sheep, with a minimum rate of ½d per 100 per mile, and a maximum rate of 1d per 100 per mile; cattle minimum rate of 2d per head per 100 miles, with a maximum rate of 6d per head per 100 miles.

"That in the Central Division and portion of the Eastern Division not included in the schedule hereunder there shall be a uniform rate of 1d per 100 per mile for sheep and 6d per head per 100 miles for large stock, and that the Eastern Division boards specified herein agree to a rate of ½d per sheep per 100 miles and 3d per head for cattle.

The boards in the Eastern Division specified and referred to above are:—Tweed, Casino, Grafton, Port Macquarie, Port Stephens, Maitland, Sydney, Picton and Windsor, Berrima, Kiama, Braidwood, Broulee, Eden, Goulburn, and Bombala.

It was decided that provision be made in the amending Act for the Minister to call a conference of the boards after the Act should have been in force for three years to revise the scale of charges if found desirable.

Upon the question as to the manner in which the rates would be collected there was a close division of opinion as to whether an initial and complete charge should be made for the whole trip or a charge made locally. Conference really reversed its vote before finally deciding the point. It was moved by Mr. Colin Smith that "rates be paid at the boundary of each district;" but an amendment by Mr. Badgery "that travelling charges be paid at time of application for permit for the whole of the distance to be travelled" was carried on a division by 16 to 14. It then became the motion, and was strongly opposed, by the western men particularly. Feeling was so pronounced that the conference decided to reopen the matter and consider an amendment, practically a repetition of the defeated motion, "that boards be allowed to collect rates in their own districts in their own way," which was declared carried on the voices.

A motion was carried "that permits and delivery notes be applied for for cattle and other large stock the same as sheep." It was considered the cattlemen should bear the same burden as the sheepmen, and that such provision would tend to prevent cattle-stealing.

A delegate from Wilcannia was permitted by the conference to submit a motion recommending that the P.P. Act be altered to provide for the destruction of vermin, as it now provides for the destruction of rabbits. The motion was carried unanimously. In support it was pointed out that it was desired that the boards should have power to deal with the wild-dog pest, which was very serious in the west, and unless checked likely to become serious in the Central Division. A dog-proof fence had been erected along portion of the Queensland border, but some landholders refused to pay their share of the cost, and it was the intention of the motion that the board should have power to levy for the cost of such fences, the same as rabbit-proof fences. It was stated that in the Milparinka district, before the fence was erected, a bonus was paid on 2000 dog scalps a year, and afterwards on only 400, while country was carrying sheep for the first time.

To cover details previously considered a motion was carried directing the council of advice to see that all relevant resolutions carried at the last P.P. Boards annual conference be embodied in the amended Act if possible.

Mr. Burgess said that the Minister would prefer to deal with a central body representing the boards if possible. It would be more expeditious and better for all if they had one body representing the whole. He understood that the present council of advice was practically a courtesy body without legal standing.

A motion was carried that the conference recommends that the P.P. Boards' Council of Advice be empowered to act with full authority for the boards.

Votes of thanks to the chairman and officials concluded the conference.

SOLDIER SETTLEMENTS.

Reports of a recent inspection of soldiers' settlements on Oban and Collaroy estates, in the Coolah and Merriwa districts, have been forwarded to the Director of Soldiers' Settlements (Mr. Bryant), and submitted for the information of the Minister for Lands. In each case the inspector indicates that satisfactory progress has been made, although rain is needed, especially at Oban. The soldier-settlers at Oban are now all working on the blocks drawn by them in the ballot. All the stock is looking well, and good headway is being made with the preparation of the cultivation paddocks. Collaroy is reported to be the only place in the district showing from fair to good feed, all the surrounding country as far as Muswellbrook being in a bad state for want of rain. At the time of the inspection there were only five soldier-settlers on the estate, the others having gone to Sydney as volunteer workers in the strike. The absence of these settlers had upset arrangements for ploughing, and also necessitated holding back the ballot for blocks, which occasioned some disappointment. Tenders have been invited for burning off 1000 acres, and suckering is almost finished. A recommendation has been made that about 4000 crossbred ewes, in lamb, should be purchased for the estate as soon as possible.

The department has purchased off shears young ewes from Dungalear and Boorooma stations for Pinnacle and Ooma soldiers' settlements.

AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION.

The Department of Agriculture has arranged for the following lectures:—September 13, at Coradgery, by the sheep and wool expert, Mr. Mathews, under the auspices of the local branch of the Agricultural Bureau. Sept. 14, at the School of Arts, West Maitland, by the poultry expert, Mr. J. Hadlington, under the auspices of the Maitland and District Poultry Society.

Mr. T. T. Cambell, gen. sec. Farmers and Settlers' Association, Sydney, speaks highly of Clements Tonic as a nerve medicine. All farmers and pastoralists should note this.—Advt.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

He took her by the hand, all in the lover-like way of old. His grasp was strong, so that it hurt her. And she was afraid of him, because he seemed to be beyond her and above, as if his soul were up on the high moors, listening to some further call too far away for her dim understanding.

They came to the big stable yard, and the Squire stood awhile, watching these, his people, at their ale-drinking. All his fatherhood came round about him—his ceaseless caring for the folk he loved. A few of the godly sort—a much bigger company of sinners—one by one he scanned the faces known to him of old. They were red-browned by the sun, and the hands that lifted good liquor had the colour of the ale they drank.

"I shared work and feast, wife, in years gone by," said Holt, with a gust of sharp self-pity.

Timothy Wanless was the first to glance round and see Holt standing there, and he thumped the table till it danced. "Here's the Squire among us, lads. I telled you the best part of the feast was missing—until now."

They roared a welcome at him; and something from the clean, hard-riding years behind stirred at the Squire's heart like a moorland gale. He was battered and ill no longer. His strength came supple to him, and a happiness beyond belief.

The twins, leaving their borrowed headship of the table, were amazed to see their father step forward so gay and dominant. He came, somehow, as Squire Cunliffe might have done, long since in Stuart days, with the bigness of the older grace about him. He took his rightful place, and stood there, jesting with his guests. Then he thanked them for their help in need, and afterwards some gift of speech descended on him. He was not himself, but the spokesman for dead generations. He said so much in little compass. All that these neighbours loved—freedom, smell of the hay, the sympathy between one and all of them, whether they lived in big houses or in little—came round them like a hunting-day.

He had them at his will—made them laugh with him, touched their gravity or the deep-hidden fount of sorrow, as he listed.

"Fey," muttered old Martha, standing with the maids outside the kitchen porch. "The Squire's fey. Hark to his silver tongue—and him so blunt of speech at usual times."

Squire Holt, fey or no, squared his shoulders on the sudden, and looked out and beyond his guests for one wistful moment. Then he spoke of his boys—of the many years that might be spared him to lick them into good, moorland shape—but, if aught happened to him, the Dene was to see that they prospered.

And, somehow, a hush came about the company. It was as if each of them had been left a special guardianship by a dying man. Yet, the next moment, the Squire was jesting with them and lifting a tankard to his lips.

"Here's a hale good-night to you, neighbour-folk—and a good to-morrow," he said.

He went from them with a free and easy tread. It was only when he came to the bend of the roadway, where the rowans blossomed, that he was glad to find his wife and link his arm in hers.

"I'm dizzy, wife—tired and dizzy. Did I talk like a fool just now?"

She checked her tears. It was no time for cowardice. She had listened, while he showed his heart to these hard-bitten folk; she had looked backward into the years behind, when all her care was given to the boys and she had found no leisure for the high dreams that were his. And now she understood, with a wonder and a pain, how she had slighted him.

"You talked like the man of my heart, husband."

"With my head buzzing all the time, like Murgatroyd's confounded mill-wheel, over at Consett yonder?"

"I'm not concerned with your head," said Mrs. Holt, with the coquetry of twenty years ago. "It is your heart that matters—your heart and mine."

Robbie the hunchback had taken his little share in the hay-making. It was not much he could do, but he had done it gallantly. And now he was free to take his ease. There was ale-drinking at Moorseats, and jest, and laughter; but, for his part, he chose his own reward for labour done. He had no liking for merry-makings, which, to him, were simply tumult and unrest. The hubbub of a crowd either bewildered him, or ruffled the temper that was keen-edged as a knife.

He went up the bank of Cringle Water, past its many bridges; and every turn and eddy had its own note for him. He knew the deep, gurgling melody that came like a human voice from the pool under the arched brigg—the fretful splash that raced underneath the straight slab of stone, a little further on, which crossed to the field-track leading up to Moorseats—the rippling hush where the stream crept under the willow trunk, thick as a man's body, that had grown prostrate and made itself a living bridge.

To other Cringle folk this stream of theirs was a delight, a something pleasant as the moors that hemmed them in, a usual and accepted matter. But to the hunchback it was an organ played upon by master-hands. Day by day of his mis-shapen life he had caught a finer and a finer hearing for the music of the waters. A man's soul grows by what it feeds on, and Robbie was a skilled and happy worshipper, here where the over-branching trees made a winding aisle of dappled light and shade. And under that aisle the stream voiced every note of human prayer—low, quiet litanies of supplication—tender, wayward hymns of thanksgiving—deep, flowing cadences that were the very voice of worship. All this Robbie had learned, because he had loved Cringle Water with a constant and a single heart.

In and out the track ran, crossing from side to side just as fancy led it: and by and by it reached a bridge that spanned two meeting streams. Robbie halted for a while. His face seemed never to be young or old for long together—but just now it showed ancient as that of some wise greybeard, sitting beside the hearth and finding wisdom in exchange for a chilled and peevish body. In some odd way of his own fancy took him up to the high moors where these two streams found birth leagues apart from one another. He saw them race and skelter, turning a boulder here, lapping the dead bones of a buried forest lower down, twisting and twining through an aimless journey to the Dene. Not a foot of their restless journey but he knew by heart.

And now the meaning of it came to him. Fret, and blunder, and hurry as they would, they met at the old bridge here, and joined to make the melody that swept full-throated down between the banks of Cringle Water.

"You're twins now, I reckon," said Robbie, as if the streams had ears that listened to him. "Twins, getting out into the world; and what one has learned on Lonesome Heights, and t'other up on Tinker's Bog—why, they'll just have to share and share together, like those lads o' Squire's up yonder."

His thoughts wandered down the years, when he had a twin-brother of his own. The queer bond between them—invisible, but not to be broken by any instrument man had wit to devise—the living in each other's lives, for better or worse—he recalled it now. And a yearning came to him for the brother who had gone beyond the ken of Cringle Dene.

He shook himself free of sorrow by and by, and crossed the bridge, and went up the right-hand stream that was known as Elvies Beck. And here he came to the enchanted land. Not a sloping pasture, not a wooded corner of the brook, but had some name that spoke of ancient faith in kindliness and high romance. The track was not easy: smooth going was left far behind, where men prospered and grew fat with sloth. Now the track went steeply up to avoid a wet and ferny slope of rock, and again it curved to escape some sodden bogland, green with lush grasses and blue with forget-me-nots. Sometimes Robbie had to force his way through briars that cumbered up the path: twice his face took scars from a twig that broke sharply back and struck him as he passed; but he persisted, and came at last to Dainty Hollow, where all the world was quiet, save for the lapping of the stream and song of a cock-throstle that had just watched his brood of five take flight, and lord it for a moment, and return on drooping pinions, glad yet awhile for shelter of the nest.

There was another music that did not hinder the silence and the peace—rasp of the whetstone on the scythe, from the meadow high above, where old Jonathan Ratcliffe was mowing a week later than his neighbours, according to a fixed and ancient habit. For the rest, all was mellow sunlight, as the sun dipped over the moor and the gnats moved up and down, weaving a swift, fleecy veil of grey that danced and shimmered in the ruddy down-glow.

TAX ON SINGLE MEN.

Last night a well-attended public meeting was held in the School of Arts to protest against the tax on single men and widowers without children who have not enlisted.

Mr. J. Sheils presided.

Mr. Val. Ackerman moved, and Mr. Anderson seconded, the following resolution, which was carried unanimously:—"That this meeting take steps to form an association of single men and widowers without children, for the purpose of approaching the Federal Government, and placing before it our honest objection to this unfair measure, and to try to have it abandoned or modified."

Consumption Follows the Easiest Path

TUBERCULOSIS germs can be found in the lungs of 90% of all people. Yet it is only the weaker people who fall prey to the disease.

In fact, it has been said that apart from inoculation this disease cannot get a foothold except as the tissues are poisoned by self-poisoning.

Self-poisoning can be avoided by freedom from constipation—its cause. Freedom from constipation means freedom from doping the body with cathartics and physics. It means employing a treatment which will permit a return to natural regular movements.

Such a treatment is the use of Nujol, now recommended and employed by leading physicians the world over.

Nujol is harmless in any quantity, for it is not absorbed by the body even in the smallest quantities. Acts as an internal lubricant without pain or griping. Promotes a return to normal, healthful bowel activity, and frees you from "self-poisoning."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1917.

ITALY AND AUSTRIA.

The latest stage of the Isonzo campaign is evidently to follow a similar course to that of the offensive of May and June. It will be continuous, but there will be a relatively calm interval between the most violent episodes of the battle. The first stage of this battle bore to the Italians some remarkably valuable fruit. Except perhaps on the face of the Hermada ridge, they made progress at every point attacked, and they secured the mastery of Monte Santo, a dominating point on their advance. The interval has been broken by a renewed Italian offensive on the northern part of their line and by an Austrian counter-offensive on the Carso. It is unofficially stated that the Italians have captured Monte San Gabriele, the second of the three heights still in Austrian hands after the occupation of Gorizia, of which Monte Santo was the first and the most difficult. The Italian official messages, however, merely claim a success at a point further to the north, the possession of which will greatly facilitate their advance over the Bainsizza plateau. If the Italian reports are not over modest the most striking feature of the day's battle was the Austrian counter-attack. It was supported by a very heavy artillery fire, and it gained at first considerable success. The Italian infantry was driven back, and conquered trenches were captured. It is apparent from the correspondent's observations that the invaders had been unable either to dig themselves in or to bring up their artillery. The positions have been completely recovered, but the episode has somewhat modified the views on the state of the Austrian army which were proclaimed a few days ago. Austria has evidently nothing like the strength which she could employ in 1916. In spite of the relief of her Galician front she cannot repeat the counter-offensive in the Trentino, where it would be most useful. She can, however, defend her vital positions even after her carefully prepared fortifications have been mined or bombarded. The Italians have overcome many formidable obstacles. They are gradually enveloping the last defences of Trieste, but the position which they must capture still defies them, and can still depend on abundance of men and guns for its defence. The readiness of the Austrians to sacrifice regiment after regiment in this enterprise confirms the view of the importance of this battle expressed in many of the Allied countries. Trieste before the war was by far the most important outlet of the Central Powers to the East. Its importance has doubled now that Salonica, which was in fact, if not in name, an Austrian port, is under hostile control, and that German influence has been suppressed in Italy. But this battle means more both to the Central Powers and the Allies than an attack on Trieste. It may bring about the downfall of Austria, which seemed imminent before the close of Brussiloff's offensive last year. If he can pass the fortifications immediately in front of him Count Cadorna will press on to the invasion of Austria proper by the roads which lay before Napoleon's marshals in 1809. The defeat of Austria by Italy would be a striking instance of historic justice, for the frontier was so prepared by Austria with German connivance that for the past 50 years Italy has been at the mercy of an invasion, and has shaped her policy accordingly. But the influence of such a defeat on the fortunes of this war would be so great as fully to justify the suggestion that the Allies should concentrate all their strength in order to achieve it. It would not destroy Germany, but it would close the main paths of her ambition and would so isolate her Eastern vassals as to compel them to follow the Austrian example and release the forces employed against them.

The two western Allies have co-operated in this attack by the despatch of artillery and aeroplanes and ships. Their support has probably been nothing like the equivalent of the Russians of 1916, but it has helped to give the Italians their great preponderance in artillery, and has kept the Austrian fleet in harbour while the left flank of the Austrian army has been exposed to a severe bombardment. Simultaneously with this help, the Allies have endeavoured to prevent the despatch of reinforcements from Bulgaria and Turkey. Each of these countries will be too busily occupied with the defence of its own possessions to spare troops for Austria, even if it has the inclination to do so. The preparations of the Austrian Government to meet an attack have been twofold. There has been an appeal to Germany, which has produced an army corps and much good advice. There have also been a series of conciliatory measures introduced into the Parliaments of Austria and Hungary designed to satisfy the non-German peoples. The King-Emperor has clearly been impressed by the terms of the Allied Note, which promised to the Bohemian and Southern Slavs independence, and to the Italians union with the kingdom of Italy. He has answered by an amnesty to political leaders imprisoned during the war and by concessions of rights almost amounting to autonomy within the Empire to the nationalities. The reports of the Reichsrath debates which have reached us and the disorders which have followed the Italian success do not suggest that these concessions have been followed by any revival of loyalty. The new Emperor has to pay the penalty for the crimes committed under Francis Joseph. The Austrian Government began the war by a series of brutal persecutions, the memory of which will not be obliterated by any political gifts. The two dominant races—Germans and Hungarians—unite to torture the subject races upon whom they now depend for help. Austria has never been regarded during the war with the same sense of outraged hostility as Germany by the Western Allies. But her record shows that it is strength, and not will, that has been wanting to make her list of outrages as long and as terrible as that of the Germans. Servia has been the Austrian Belgium, Galicia after its recovery was treated only a little better than Armenia. Austria had her small share of frightfulness in the torpedoing of the Ancona. The Allies may concentrate against Austria, because they have decided that she presents them with a vulnerable place, but if their intention were to punish a malefactor among the nations and to set free an oppressed people they would be amply justified by her history since the last great European war.

"A REVOLT, AND NOT A STRIKE."

The above summary of the present industrial position in this State by the Prime Minister of the Commonwealth needs little comment. It exactly defines the condition of affairs created by the extremists who are in control of organised unionism at the present moment; and this being so the people who are seeking for some basis of compromise between the strikers and the Government of New South Wales must realise that they have no case. Revolution, or any attempt at one, admits of neither controversy nor compromise. But usually revolution is associated with resistance to a tyranny, if it is part of freedom's battle, or with the effort of men greedy for power, if it is simply piratical. The first is the meaning of Russia's reasonable effort at self-realisation, however cruelly we may be disappointed over the immediate results. Czarism and the most abominable corruption and treachery have gone together; and the Russian people after half a century of preparation for liberty are now agonising in the attempt to be free. The second is Mexico's condition, and was the commonplace of South American politics for many years. How can we associate Australia with either? And where does Mr. Hughes find justification for his scorching indictment of the leaders of this great strike, which already affects 65,000 men in this State and is throwing thousands out of work in other States? Are we not a democracy? What other country on the face of the earth has a like freedom? Every man and woman of sound mind can go to the ballot, and is compelled to enrol as a voter. Each three years the Parliaments of Australia are before their masters, the people; and if wrong has been done, or tyranny attempted by the Governments in power, there is ample opportunity for redress. It needs a very strong argument, backed by incontrovertible facts, to warrant the charge that any section of the community in State or Commonwealth is engaged in a revolt against constituted authority; and if the conclusions so presented are found to be warranted, then Governments must cease appealing to the law, while demanding that order shall be maintained. Mr. Hughes, as Prime Minister, is bound to defend the Commonwealth throughout all its borders; and his warning issued through our columns yesterday will logically be followed by action. In our columns to-day Mr. Justice Heydon gives ample endorsement to the general conclusion. Sitting in his own Court he has declared that it is civil war to make everything "black." The strikers would starve the community; and the Prime Minister has no alternative but to fight in its behalf. His warning, therefore, is the most serious pronouncement ever made to Australians at home.

Never before in our history has a leader of government in these lands been placed in so responsible a position. There were attempts at rebellion in the earlier days, but never in such form that the foundations of our liberties were threatened, as now, with the deadliest of high explosives. Is Mr. Hughes, therefore, justified in making his statement in such terms and in issuing such a solemn warning? Fully realising the gravity of the decision we honestly believe that he is justified, and so believing we desire that every citizen shall grasp the meaning of the Prime Minister's words. This is not a strike, it is a revolt. Broken Hill has been for long enough the centre of defiance to law and order, and now it is consistent in its lawlessness; for mines have been stopped and the place is idle, so that the Commonwealth as a combatant in this war has been robbed of one of its most effective weapons. Munitions which depend upon Broken Hill products are no longer to be supplied with our help; and in the principal ports of Australia transports are being delayed and reinforcements for our men at the front cannot be sent forward on time. The Broken Hill spirit is being emulated outside, wherever the waterside workers have struck, and at every mine where the hewing of coal has been stopped. This is a revolt because Australia is at war; and those who are tying her hands in the supreme moment of the Empire's peril are fighting on the side of Germany. No appeal to possible grievances in the Railway Department of New South Wales will help in this dilemma. In the State itself there is a revolt and not a strike, because the Government is being defied with every new union called out. Defiance of the law in striking may be one of the commonplaces of our experience since strikes were made illegal; but it represents contempt for constituted authority. A general strike, however, called as this one has been, is a deliberate challenge to the Government of the State because it is in power through a recent mandate of the people. With an extension of this defiance the Prime Minister has to recognise the tremendous issue that has been raised; and his words come with added force because he has waited, too patiently as some think, to see whether by any means reason and commonsense would assert themselves. Even now he makes appeal to loyal unionists and patriotic citizens everywhere to range themselves on the right side before he takes action; for such a warning as the one given yesterday must be followed to its logical conclusion if the Federal Government is not to become ridiculous. Again it must be urged with every possible emphasis that the Commonwealth, through the Empire, is at war, and that anything—no matter what it may be—which prevents the full exercise of our strength on the side of the Empire is revolt and treason. The card system, as a grievance, vapourings about compromise, offers of mediation, and appeals for help by peace-panicky middlemen, are utterly futile in the light of the Prime Minister's statement and warning, and the words for every true lover of his country directly will be, "To your tents, O Israel."

PERSONAL.

VICE-REGAL.

Lady Cullen officially opened a fete in connection with the 1st and 53rd Battalions Comforts Fund, at St. James's Hall, yesterday afternoon.

Private advices have been received in Sydney that Brigadier-General Jobson has been ordered extended leave owing to his health having suffered severely. It is understood that he will leave England shortly, and will in all probability spend his furlough in Sydney.

The committee of the N.S.W. Master Bakers' Association yesterday entertained Mr. William White, the president, at afternoon tea at Usher's Hotel, and presented him with an inscribed gold-mounted umbrella in recognition of his services to the trade during the past year.

NATIONAL SERVICE BUREAU.

Enrolment proceeded briskly at the National Service Bureau yesterday, and 80 names were registered for service in one of the other collieries it is proposed to open. Men who have had coal-mining experience, whether as machine coal cutters, miners, wheelers, or clippers, will find ready employment if they call at the National Bureau, 25 O'Connell-street, to-day.

A number of men were engaged yesterday for both coastal and deep-sea boats. Over a hundred men called in response to an appeal for stewards and cooks, but they were asked to call again as soon as notified in the Press.

The call to-day is for miners, a.b. seamen, and firemen. A couple of cooks with seagoing experience, and one or two stewards can be placed to-day, while there is also room for donkey-men with deep-sea discharges.

It was anticipated that a large number of shovelmen would be required to shift the commandeered coal, but so far local volunteer labour has proved ample. The bureau is still enrolling shovel men in case they may be wanted, but there is no immediate demand. As before stated, the bureau can place all the miners and seamen and firemen that are offering.

TRADE UNION EXTREMISTS.

DESTRUCTIVE INFLUENCE.

Mr. George Lewis, who has resigned his position as secretary of the Federated Flour Mill Employees' Union, in the course of an interview yesterday, said that the attitude of the Millers' Union in not refusing to handle the so-called "black" and other materials required in the production of food went far towards the prevention of the general strike recently advocated by extremists in the trade union movement, and probably prevented bakers, bread-carters, and pastry cooks becoming involved in the strike. Continuing, he said: "I am a confirmed believer in legitimate unionism, and it would be a sad day for our fair land if ever trade unions lose their power to work for the protection and advancement of the workers' welfare. The fact that several organisations appear to be controlled by the red rag element, I attribute to the lethargy of the more solid and thinking section of the unionists, who will not make a little sacrifice and regularly attend general meetings, and so outvote the extremists. I venture to say that not 5 per cent. of the members of any union can be classed as regular attendants, while in most organisations, 50 to 60 per cent. do not attend a meeting in 12 months. It is not correct to say that members of the I.W.W. control the unions, but very unbalanced members of the unions, holding impracticable theories, find the union meeting a splendid place to air views and propagate doctrines which have nothing to commend them to the straight-going unionist. It is my firm opinion that the present conflict will result in the better class of members being awakened to the need there is for them to attend the meetings, and accept the responsibilities of executive positions, and by this means the destructive influence of the fiery revolutionaries will be counteracted, and finally eliminated altogether."

OVERSEA MAILS.

Letters (only) for the United Kingdom will be received at the General Post Office until 4.30 p.m. to-day.

UNIONS SPLIT.

IN VICTORIA.

DEFENCE COMMITTEE REBUFFED.

MEN DECLINE TO STRIKE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

While the Union Defence Committee has persistently denied its responsibility for the spread of the strike, it is undoubted that it has been at its direction that large numbers of men have left work. This dictatorial attitude has led to a rupture with three of the unions which had representation on the committee.

The Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the Boilermakers' Society, and the Shipwrights' Society were instructed that their members should not work with volunteers.

The executives of these unions declined to accept the domination of the Strike Committee, and their members are now working on practically the same conditions which prevailed before the strike began.

It is complained by these unions that it was desired to subject them to dictation from unskilled workers who began the strike and had less to lose by it than the craftsmen. The representatives of these unions admitted to-day that their trouble with the Union Defence Committee arose over the instruction that had been given to cease work wherever volunteer labour was employed.

Following on the decision of the Union Defence Committee in declaring the Amalgamated Society of Engineers "black" as result of their continuing at work, the Boilermakers' Society and the Shipwrights' Society have refused to cease work when loyalists or non-unionists are employed.

Obeying the instructions of the union defence committee, members of the Boilermakers' Society left work at Williamstown early last week. They met on Monday, and expressed their willingness to resume, even though volunteers were employed at the State shipyards.

Some members of the Shipwrights' Society and of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners resumed work at the Melbourne S.S. Company's Williamstown depot on Wednesday. Action was taken in the cases of the engineers, boilermakers, and shipwrights, with the approval of their unions, but the secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners stated to-day that his union had not sanctioned the resumption. A meeting of the union will be held to-morrow to discuss the matter.

The defection of these unions is having a disturbing effect at the Trades Hall. A total of 20,873 persons are now affected by the strike. Of these 10,187 are on strike, and 6029 have been thrown out of employment, and 4657 employees of the boot trade are working on short time. The State Cabinet this evening decided to grant an extension—till Monday—of the period allowed to the Wonthaggi miners in which to return to work. The Premier (Sir Alexander Peacock) stated subsequently that negotiations were pending which he believed would result in an early resumption of work.

To-day many persons refused to work in cases where volunteer labour had been employed in the handling of goods. Wherever it is possible to carry on business employers are firmly resolved to use whatever labour is at command. Promises of support by the Government in this direction were given by the Premier (Sir Alexander Peacock) to-day to a deputation representing 39 trade associations, and it is expected that the employment of volunteer workers will be considerably extended shortly.

THE CUMBERLAND.

FURTHER REWARD OFFERED.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

The Queensland Government has offered a reward of £1000 in connection with the disaster to the steamer Cumberland. The sum will be paid to persons, not being the principal offenders, who supply information leading to the conviction of any person or persons guilty of causing the explosion which caused serious damage to the vessel, and subsequently her total loss.

MEANS CIVIL WAR.

JUDGE HEYDON ON THE STRIKE.

Judge Heydon, in cancelling the registration and the preference clause in the award of the Trolly, Draymen, and Carters' Union yesterday, said that the doctrine of "black" as developed in the present strike meant civil war.

His Honor said he took into consideration the previous conduct of the organisation; he had often had to deal with its affairs, and had often noticed its attitude. On the one hand, it had benefited very much by the operations of the Act; on the other hand, it had distinguished itself by its peaceable attitude in times of trouble by keeping at the work of the community that was entrusted to it to do, and if this had been a matter in which he could make a distinction between a well-behaved union and a turbulent, unruly union he could take those circumstances into consideration.

"But it is not a case of that kind," continued his Honor. "It is an application for cancellation, and I can either cancel or not cancel; there is no intermediate course. I do not think the distinction could be made in applications of this kind."

Mr. Connington (for the union): Section 47 allows of suspension.

His Honor: Yes, I have looked at that. But this trouble is one entirely on its own, and it is very serious indeed. This is the first trouble, so far as I can remember, that has brought quite plainly home to the general community what the "black" doctrine really means. The "black" doctrine means war—there is no other term for it; it is civil war. It means that when trouble arises between employer and employee, even if on a small scale, the whole community will be put to whatever suffering, loss, and trouble may be necessary to ensure victory for the employee or employees. That is what the "black" doctrine means.

"If it were applied the other way—if the community, or the employers, were to apply that doctrine people could be starved to death. And the application of this doctrine by the unions would starve a large number of people if the activities of the community did not counteract it.

"It is an attempt to starve the community—to ruin. It is a revolutionary doctrine. There is no other word for it except civil war.

"We have seen lately in the papers how a community in the north of Australia is faced with what might very well become starvation. That is the result of this doctrine. This strike more than any I can remember has shown that plainly; and it has raised the question—the public question—whether such a doctrine can be permitted to exist any longer. This union has taken its side with those who have applied it. Their strike is an illustration of the doctrine. The affidavits only refer to stoppages by the men because something or other was 'black.'

"I do not possibly see how a union that has treated the community in that way and applied the principle with such severity can be considered to retain a position under the Arbitration Act. In granting preference, which is another branch, the Legislature has clearly contemplated that it should be held only by peaceful unions and unions not violating the law. The same is the case with regard to registration. Registration gives privileges that are not to be attained by unions that strike.

"I think, really, the fairest way to put matters of this kind is that the unions themselves cancel their registration. When they disobey the Act they cut themselves off logically, and in giving full effect to their action the Court is only recognising their action."

A POLITICAL REVOLT

STRIKE PLANNED AFTER LAST ELECTIONS

WITHOUT CONSULTING UNIONS

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT

Mr. Fuller, Acting Premier, supplied the following statement yesterday:—

During the last two years, in spite of the war, this State has been involved in more strikes than in any other period of its history. Many of these disturbances have been in gross violation of agreements solemnly made between unions and employers. Many of them have led to the holding up of transports, delay in the operations at the Naval Dockyards, and have hampered the sending forward of reinforcements and supplies to Europe. A large number of these strikes have been purely the result of quarrels amongst unionists themselves on demarcation questions. In spite of our Federal and State industrial laws, an extreme element amongst unionists has succeeded in keeping Australia during the war period in a constant state of industrial ferment.

After the last general election a series of secret meetings were held in Sydney, and an elaborate plan was prepared for the calling of a general strike in Australia without consultation with the members of the different unions.

A secret committee was formed, and an arrangement was made that when it gave the signal all industries in Australia were, as far as possible, to be suddenly held up in a general strike.

The strike which this committee had in view was not industrial, but political.

Its object was not to remedy grievances, but to achieve a political purpose.

At the end of July one of the unions which was a party to this arrangement suddenly forced a quarrel on the Railway Commissioners over the card system, and served a 24 hours ultimatum on the Government, threatening to hold up the whole of the railway service unless its demand was granted.

This demand amounted to a claim by the union to control the business management of the greatest of our State enterprises. At that time the card system was only in operation in the Randwick workshop and a portion of the carriage shops at Eveleigh. The Government consented to hold a conference with the representatives of the dissatisfied unions, and at that conference offered not to extend the system beyond those two shops, and at the end of three months to appoint a commission, and give the unions an opportunity of showing whether the system was unfair or not, and if found to be unfair to the men to modify or abolish it.

It also offered to give every workman the right to inspect and initial the time records relating to his work kept by the foreman. This offer was refused.

Up to that moment it had never been suggested that there were any other grievances which could possibly justify a strike, and discussion showed that every trouble mentioned could have been adjusted by the Arbitration Courts, if they had been approached in the proper way.

The unions concerned, finding that they could not hold up the railway service, then proceeded to call out other unions. The coal miners ceased work, in spite of a solemn undertaking given that in return for substantial concessions made they would not strike for three years. The coal miners admitted that they had no grievance, and were perfectly satisfied with the industrial conditions operating in their industry.

No ballot was taken, but merely at the call of an executive of about a dozen men the whole of the coal production of the State was stopped.

Other unions were gradually induced to come into the fight by the Strike Committee, declaring certain products and operations black.

None of these unions had anything to do with the original dispute, and all of them have come into the fight as a result of the scheme prepared by the secret committee in March last.

On these facts the Government made its appeal to the public for support, and on the grounds that this is not an ordinary strike for the settlement of industrial conditions, but a deliberate challenge to constitutional government.

The Cabinet put forward its original terms of settlement after close and careful consideration of the whole position. It has not varied those terms, and will not vary them.

The only way to bring about an immediate settlement is for the Strike Committee to declare the strike off, leaving it to the Government and Parliament to see that justice is done.

ON TWO BATTLE FRONTS.

V.—INTERLUDE—IN PARIS.

(BY ARTHUR MASON.)

LONDON, July.

War or no war, and whatever its war-distress and its war-weariness, Paris is Paris, and in the sunny days of its wonderful June of this year, and under the stars of its own clear June nights, at its climax of beauty and charm. The anxieties of Paris have been many and great, and the losses it bears as the centre and capital of a bruised and burdened France are the continuous, accumulated, terrible losses of three of the bitterest years Paris has ever known. The wounds and the griefs of France are, indeed, of such a sort as to sadden any who think of them, and to sadden especially those who have seen France in these days and can measure in some degree the depth of her sorrow.

It would be absurd to say that Paris rebounds from all this suffering untouched and unchanged. It is truer to say that the note of sadness is an insistent undertone, easily to be heard for the listening, and to be heard universally. But only for the listening. Above it the essential gaiety of Paris still springs, and soars, and leaps light-footed, still is a carol of laughter, and a magic of song, and the sparkle of it a happy music, though it be built, like the happy music of the merry man and the merry maid, upon a drone of grief. Tears are inevitably behind this laughter of Paris, and sorrow is beneath its songs, but the Parisian way is to mourn in secret and to face the world with a smile. Thus the Paris of these June days, and for all its bereavements and its anxieties was, or seemed to be, almost as light and as gay and as brilliant as in the old untroubled years that have gone.

Part of this aspect of Paris is no doubt an illusion born of the inherent beauty of the great city—these days of glamour upon the spell of which veiled and disguised all else. For these were days in which Paris was wrapped round by the early summer splendour that so decks out its essential finesse and distinction, when the artistry of its streets, and the charm of its gardens and avenues, and the breadth and sweep of its buildings and boulevards, and the thronging movement of the crowds within and about them lay open beneath the high, clear light of cloudless skies. It was light seen through a fine air, in which distances were unblurred and the nearer views of river and bridges and towers and temples, and all their spread of sculpture and adornment were massed and ranged in sharp-set outline, and it was such light as made a scene of beauty of any of the many streets of Paris, where the eye took in at once facades, and trees, and moving crowds, or crowds seated in the cafes who, whether they sat beneath the canvas awnings or out in the open and uncovered from the sun, were a-shine with colour. And these were days, too, in which the leaf and the grass and the flowers of the Bois were at their height of charm, and the Champs Elysees, though it is bordered with war hospitals and offices for the administration of war, was a spread of green beauty, with its famous chestnut avenues in that full glory of them when not a flicker of the sun comes through, so that even in the mid heat of the day one might walk beneath them in a cool seclusion of leaf and branch, and within a shade as deep almost as darkness.

It was amid such a surrounding that the life of Paris moved in these days of June, and it was because of all this grace and colour in its mere frame that the picture itself of the people of Paris and the rush and vigour of the traffic on the streets, and the glow and mass of the boulevards and the artistically-spread appeal of galleries and markets, and cafes and shops, seemed always to have so much in it of assured happiness, and so little in it of sadness or depression. Sometimes, indeed, one stands amazed in the streets of war-burdened Paris, wondering upon the flood-tide stream of a life which still, and for all that Paris has suffered and is suffering, brims and sparkles seemingly with an inward sunshine, as radiant as the high, clear light itself of this cloudless June. The traffic eddies and swirls upon the broad streets in the old, swift, free-and-easy way, traffic in the midst of which the taxis swoop and fly at reckless speeds and the ancient picturesque of red and yellow-wheeled voitures, sedate as their rivals are madcap, jog and amble in the pleasantly restful way so suited to the mood of their aged horses and the dignity of their top-hatted cochers who, ruddy and jovial, or meagre and decrepit, are so obviously survivals of a great line, still are men with an air, men historic and apart. The promenades of Paris are as full and the great shopping streets are as alluring as of yore, and the cafes and the restaurants are as crowded and as gay as ever in the popular afternoon hours of rendezvous and as far into the night as maybe. And the swarm of streets in the poorer quarters are as dense as ever under their crowds, and the business and pleasures of their day are as much as ever a matter of vast movement and energy.

More than most else, perhaps, it is the night life of Paris which sounds an unfamiliar note, for the lights of it are out, the life of the cafes and restaurants is quenched at an hour once unimaginable, and the streets are dark and empty and silent, where they were used to whirl and dance in a setting of light and laughter. Many theatres, nevertheless, are open, and if visits to two of them which were all I was able to make, are any measure of the whole, there is still a great patronage of plays and music. The Theatre Francais, for one, was quite filled for an old and conventional George Sand comedy, the finished performance of which by its actors, and the perfection of the ensemble, once more revealed the Parisian stage as of unrivalled artistry and grace. On the only night available for the opera "Faust" was in performance, and being "Faust" it seemed to promise little that was not familiar. But it turned out to be such a "Faust" as, after all, only the Paris opera presents. For besides an orchestra of 100 players, and the admirable singing of all the principals, the Brocken scene of the fourth act was given with a ballet of some 80 dancers, a chorus numbering at least 250 came on for the Kermesse, while for the purposes of the garden scene the huge stage of the Opera was built into such a maze of foreground trees and flowers, and background vistas, and the stage lighting was so perfect, that in the rising of the moon the garden of Marguerite was a quite wonderful spread of beauty. The audience filled the great theatre, so that there, too, the burden of war was apparently unfelt, and was certainly imperceptible.

That, however, and all this seemingly untroubled life of Paris, is either illusion or the temporary and partial relaxing of the actual strain of war-time. For somewhere out of sight, in greater or in less degree, the people of Paris are suffering. They live cramped and embarrassed lives. With their coal supplies largely in enemy hands and their food supplies at least stinted, the very elements of their comfort are affected. And in Paris as much as in any city other and multitudinous problems of the war have been a sustained and intense burden heaping upon the people a thousand-fold anxiety. France, moreover, and with it Paris, has suffered, as only France has suffered, the worst weight of war, has suffered in these years such a draining of its manhood that though no people smile more bravely than they, the tears of the French people are not far below their smiles.

This sense of what they have suffered, and are suffering, was vividly, though unconsciously, suggested by Paris, while we were there. General Pershing, the Commander-in-Chief of the American army, arrived in the city, and preceding him, and with him, and about him, were a large body of American military men. The entrance of General Pershing into Paris was in the nature of a triumph. Tens of thousands of people lined his route and cheered him as he passed, and outside the Hotel Crillon, where he stayed, a great crowd gathered to cheer him again, and to cheer him, and whomever else was American. To cheer for that matter any who, being strangers, might conceivably be Americans, for during the afternoon even Mr. Fisher, and with him three Australians, were greeted as they came out of the Hotel Crillon, with shouts of "Vive L'Amerique." That cry of "Vive L'Amerique," was, in fact, all over Paris in those days, and as insistent and as inescapable as the American flags that hung from miles of housetops. It was an illuminating cry. Clearly it sprang from a profound sense of relief. Paris needs the Americans. Paris needs anybody at all who promises or who symbolises the end of this long and bravely suffered but ever monstrous strain upon the endurance of the people of France.

ITALIAN BATTLE

VIOLENT RENEWAL OF FIGHTING

AUSTRIAN ATTACKS

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Fighting has blazed up again on the Italian front, with the Italian attack on Mount San Gabriele. The Austrians are desperately counter-attacking, particularly on the Carso.

An Italian communique, issued on Wednesday evening, says:

The battle on the Julian front has been renewed violently.

We captured an important position south-west of Okroglo.

A battle is raging north-east of Gorizia.

We captured yesterday 1688 prisoners, belonging to ten regiments.

The enemy violently attacked between Castagnavizza and the sea. The enemy gained an initial success between the Brestovizza Valley and the sea, but our counter-attack re-established the line and yielded 416 prisoners.

Our aeroplanes, to the number of 261, participated in the battle.

Our air fleet last night effectively bombarded Pola and returned safely.

It is reported from Zurich that the Press Bureau in Vienna says that the Austrian divisions on the Italian front have done their whole duty, but were crushed by the enemy artillery. This is the most significant and most serious admission that has yet been made by the Austrians.

Reports received in Amsterdam show that Austrian war correspondents admit that Mount San Gabriele has been exposed to the most violent drum fire. Various Italian infantry attacks followed, which, at the time the correspondent's reports were sent, had not ended. The mountain was then enveloped in dense clouds of smoke.

The Central News Agency confirms the report of the capture of Mount San Gabriele, with many prisoners and much booty.

The "Cologne Gazette" (German) foreshadows a further Austrian retirement.

AUSTRIAN ACTIVITY.

Reports from the Italian front on Wednesday state that the fighting, north-east of Gorizia, has restarted with violence, sufficiently proving that the Austrians have been lying low in the past few days. It has been found that definite deductions cannot be drawn from the comparative quiescence of the enemy's artillery. If it is less active than the Italian that does not necessarily signify a shortage of ammunition.

Tuesday's heavy bombardment of the Italian communications in and around Gorizia shows that the Austrians are alive to the importance of their present positions. The Austrians are continually bringing up reserves and enormous numbers of machine guns, and are sacrificing regiment after regiment in the hope of weakening the Italian attacks. Their old and formidable trenches have been now wiped out, and the Homeric struggle has developed into continuous hand-to-hand fighting.

The Italians' only protection from the murderous machine guns lies in each man digging himself in.

Meanwhile, the Italians are pitilessly shelling the Austrian caves and dugouts. The latest prisoners state that thousands of wounded men have been lying there for days, and it is impossible to succour them.

The Austrian offensive on the Carso, no doubt, aims at breaking the circle of steel which is gradually closing round Mount Hermada.

ANT. AUSTRIAN CAMPAIGN.

The United Press Association's correspondent in Washington learns that the Allies are likely shortly to undertake a new, strong campaign against Austria. Strong pressure is being exerted to induce America to declare war against Austria.

SHIPPING LOSSES.

FIGURES CONTINUE ALARMING.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

The following is the Admiralty summary of shipping movements and of ships lost during the week ended September 3. The figures do not include fishing and local craft, and vessels of less than 100 tons are not counted in the arrivals and sailings announced.

Arrivals, 2384; departures, 2432.

Ships over 1600 tons sunk, 26; under 1600 tons, 3.

Ships unsuccessfully attacked, 9.

ITALIAN LOSSES.

An Italian communique announces that during the week ended September 3 there were 566 arrivals and 468 departures recorded at Italian ports. Three steamers and one sailer were sunk. One steamer was unsuccessfully torpedoed.

SUNKEN SUBMARINE

A Copenhagen report states that a Norwegian torpedo boat discovered a sunken German submarine lying on the sea bottom near Hammerfest. The submarine is 160 feet long, and is seriously damaged, either by bomb or shellfire.

NEW FRENCH SHIPS.

The French mercantile marine authorities have planned to lay down for the current year thrice the annual amount of new tonnage known before the war.

SUBMARINES AND MINEFIELD.

A message from Copenhagen states that a hundred mines and much wreckage have been washed up on the coast of Jutland. The Germans are scattering a new kind of floating mine, consisting of a small bomb, which can only be alerted with difficulty, and which explodes at the slightest contact.

The survivors of four German trawlers destroyed recently by mines in this area have described their methods of work. They operated in pairs, with a great steel net between each for the purpose of breaking the British minefield. Two submarines followed each steamer slowly as the mines were removed. Several submarines at various times thus traversed the minefield.

While the survivors were standing on the Danish shore a German warship ordered them to some Danish fishing boats and return aboard. They refused, whereupon the commander sent a motor-boat, which capsized. Danish fishermen rescued the crew.

CONSTANTINE'S HOPES.

It is reported from Copenhagen that ex-King Constantine, of Greece has issued a proclamation denouncing M. Venizelos (Premier of Greece).

The "Vossische Zeitung" (Berlin) says that Constantine regards himself as being still the King of Greece, and believes he will return to the throne.

WESTERN FRONT

AERIAL ACTIVITY MARKED.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

Marked aerial activity in all sectors and attacks on the French Aisne front are all that is recorded in the Western communiques.

BRITISH.

WEDNESDAY, ISSUED 12.50 P.M.

We drove off raiders in the neighbourhood of Armentieres. The Portuguese also drove off a raid.

THURSDAY, ISSUED 1.20 A.M.

We drove back raiders east of Klein Zillebeke (south-east of Ypres).

Artillery fire continues on the Ypres front.

Enemy aeroplanes bombed various places, including the hospital area, causing a few casualties. We brought down one raider.

Our aeroplanes and balloons co-operated with the artillery all day yesterday, and, in spite of vigorous attacks, secured a record number of photographs, of which many were taken at great distances behind the German line. Enemy aeroplanes were not inclined to fight, except well east of the line.

We brought down five and drove down nine enemy machines; seven of ours are missing.

FRENCH.

WEDNESDAY, ISSUED 4.45 P.M.

After a lively bombardment the Germans last evening attacked Casemates Plateau. Our fire checked the attackers, who were unable to reach our lines.

The artillery struggle was continued violently on both banks of the Meuse during the night.

German aeroplanes last night again bombed hospitals near Verdun. There were some casualties. Six enemy aeroplanes were brought down. Five fell in their own lines seriously damaged.

In reprisal for bombing hospitals, two of our aeroplanes last night bombed Treves. We also carried out many air raids on railway stations, aerodromes, barracks, factories, and munition dumps, causing violent fire around the last named objectives.

THURSDAY, ISSUED MIDNIGHT.

After a violent bombardment, the Germans launched two attacks on the California Plateau (on the Aisne front), which we repulsed.

There are lively artillery duels on both banks of the Meuse, at Verdun.

GERMAN.

WEDNESDAY, ISSUED 5.40 P.M.,

There has been vigorous day and night aerial activity. We bombed Dover, Boulogne, and Calais. We shot down 22 aeroplanes.

AMERICA INSISTS.

AUTOCRACY MUST BE BROKEN.

The United States Department of State has announced that the German Emperor's militaristic power must be utterly broken before America can discuss peace. A popular form of government in Germany is one of the essential conditions to peace discussions.

Mr. Roosevelt, in the course of a speech, said there must be no peace except through the complete defeat of the brutalised and Prussianised Germany of the Hohenzollerns. Germany's methods of warfare were hideous beyond belief—cruel, and unspeakably brutal. The papers printed in the German language in the United States were scandalously disloyal, and should be suppressed.

The Senate adopted a graduated tax on war profits, ranging from 12 to 60 per cent., defeating the Radicals' endeavour to make it 80 per cent.

A Dutch mission is expected within a week. The first matter to be discussed will be the use of Dutch ships, held in American ports, in the service between Australia and the United States.

ENORMOUS APPROPRIATION.

An agreement between the United States political leaders has assured the passage of the new War Bonds Bill, which provides for £2,307,600,000—the largest financial appropriation ever proposed. It includes £900,000,000 advances to the Allies.

The Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, has announced additional loans of £20,000,000 each to Britain and France.

AMERICAN LABOUR LOYAL.

RESOLUTION BY GREAT CONVENTION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.

The labour organisations of the United States opened their first great convention in Minneapolis to-day.

The convention passed a resolution pledging unwavering support to the Government's war programme.

Other resolutions advocated resistance to any encroachment on free speech and a free Press, greater economic efficiency during the war, and recognition after the war of unions which are loyal to the Government.

A large section of the delegates advocates the public ownership of railways, mines, telegraphs, and other utilities.

Mr. Samuel Gompers (president of the Federation of Labour) in a speech said that the present struggle was not a capitalist war, but a freeman's war. Labour must combat every form of propaganda which was designed to weaken the loyalty and devotion of the masses.

"We must strip the mask from those who, in the name of democracy, anti-militarism, and peace, are engaged in nefarious treachery," he went on. "The democracy of the United States must see that the Declaration of Independence is not supplanted by the Kaiser's fiat, but must assist to save civilisation from the brutal iron rule of Germany."

EAST AFRICA.

A Belgian communique, relating to the East African campaign, says: Before the converging advance of the British and Belgian columns the enemy retired to the south bank of the Kilimbero. An enemy detachment on the River Santo was attacked on August 24 and driven southwards. The British and Belgian columns junctioned at Trakara, on the northern bank of the Kilimbero.

FAR BEYOND RIGA.

ENEMY ADVANCE.

POSITION NOT YET HOPELESS.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

The Germans appear to be advancing in the Riga region. They are reported over 30 miles north-east of Riga. The Russian communiques, however, do not suggest that the position is hopeless.

A Russian official message on Wednesday afternoon stated:—Our retirement along the Gulf of Riga continues. The enemy reached the crossings of the river Aa, 30 versts north-east of Riga.

Our troops operating eastward of Riga retired to Segewold, Lemberg, and Detzhubraso (30 miles north-east of Riga).

Submarines shelled the Riga coast.

Our counter-attacks drove out the enemy from heights near Slobodzeia. We captured 200 prisoners and restored the positions.

A German official message says: Our operations in the Riga region have further developed. Heavy coast guns, including some of 30 centimetres calibre, have been captured.

A German communique, issued at 1.35 a.m. on Thursday, says: The northern wing and centre of the Twelfth Russian Army are rapidly retreating.

The report that the town of Dvinsk has been evacuated by the Russians has been formally denied.

M. Savinkoff, Minister for War, states that the army is retiring in perfect order in conformity with a prearranged plan.

RESULT OF FRATERNISING.

The Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" declares that the position at Riga has been most serious for a fortnight. The Moscow Convention, which ended last week, hourly expected news of the capture of Riga, but the Germans bided their time. Otherwise, the extremists at Moscow would have been persuaded to trust to the recommendations of General Kornilloff, instead of believing that he was trying to create panic and thereby undermine the results of the revolution. Directly the Convention was over, the Germans struck.

A Lettish battalion had abandoned Uxkull bridgehead a month before. The Germans crossed the river on pontoons. Some Russian units counter-attacked, but the rest fled. The Germans pushed across the Jaegel river, within sight of Riga, which was thereupon evacuated.

Riga has been the centre of German agitation for months. During the period of fraternising the Germans gave the Lettish soldiers free trips to their homes in that part of Courland in German occupation. Many of the Letts finally believed that it did not matter whether the Germans or the Russians gave them the autonomy they desire.

RUSSIAN FOOD CRISIS.

A message from Petrograd says the food crisis is serious. There is only bread in reserve for three days' supply. Soldiers and civilians are suffering privations. The main cause is attributed to the peasants, who refuse to supply grain owing to their inability to obtain supplies of iron, paraffin oil, salt, and cotton goods in exchange. The Government is unable to meet the demands of the peasants owing to a shortage of fuel and means of transport.

There are similar difficulties in Finland, where the Government has decided to make requisitions if the peasantry persist in refusing to supply stocks voluntarily.

GRAND DUKES ARRESTED.

The Petrograd newspapers report the detention of several Grand Dukes in consequence of the discovery of a plot against the Government established by the revolution. The Grand Duke Michael, the brother of the ex-Czar, whom the latter nominated as monarch when abdicating, is among those arrested.

SUBMARINE SHELLS SCARBOROUGH.

A British official message states: A submarine appeared off Scarborough, on the English east coast, on Tuesday evening, and fired 30 rounds, half of which fell on the land.

Three people were killed and five injured. The material damage was slight.

The submarine appeared, two miles from Scarborough, at 7 p.m., in misty weather, and shelled the shore, which was crowded with visitors. The bombardment lasted 10 minutes. One shell hit the railway station, but caused no casualty. A woman was killed in her own doorway.

Mine-sweepers opened fire and pursued the raider, which submerged.

ALL LEAD SEIZED

The Minister for Munitions has taken possession of all lead in the United Kingdom as from September 1.

JAPANESE HELP.

ASSURANCE TO U.S.A.

The Japanese Mission to the United States appeared before Congress, and was enthusiastically received.

Baron Ishii, in an address, warned Americans of plots to sow discord between the United States and Japan. "Our co-operation should protect us from these forces of evil," he said. "We bring you an assurance of Japan's fullest support in order to defeat Germany."

JAPANESE FOR RUSSIA.

A Geneva message says that, according to the Munich "Neuesten Nachrichten," a large Japanese force is concentrated on the Manchurian border, ready to assist the Russians.

UNBROKEN ROUMANIA.

The latest telegrams from the Roumanian front prove the gallantry of the defenders' resistance, especially on the Oltus front, where the Austrians and Germans, in the last ten or twelve days of August, incessantly beat against the Roumanians day and night. It is true that the enemy gained ground slightly, but his losses were heavy. It is estimated that 10 Austrian and German divisions were exhausted. The enemy frequently attacked in six waves in an endeavour to seize Targu Ocna, which covers an important railway, but the defence was courageous in the extreme. The Roumanians even counter-attacked, forcing the enemy to yield ground.

BOMBS ON LONDON.

MIDNIGHT AIR RAID.

LONDON, Sept. 6.

A British official report states that a considerable number of aeroplanes crossed the south-east coast over a wide area on Tuesday night. The raiders travelled singly or in groups, rendering an estimate of the numbers difficult, but there were possibly 20. The first bombs were dropped in the London district at 11.45 p.m., and the bombing continued till 1.40 a.m. Bombs were also dropped on the coast. The damage was not extensive. One machine was brought down in the sea at Sheerness.

When the police cyclists gave the warning the people took cover in the tubes and elsewhere. The theatre crowds were caused inconvenience, but nowhere was there panic. Owing to the misty moonlight it was impossible to detect the raiders, and remarkably little gunfire was heard.

The Press Bureau announced this evening that the casualties were:—Eleven killed and 62 injured.

The raiders came at intervals and not as formerly in full force. It was noticeable that the first bombs were smaller than the others, indicating that one aeroplane was ahead, the Germans hoping that our guns would open fire and disclose their positions to the remainder of the raiders, but the intruders were disappointed.

Londoners heard seven bombs at 11.30 p.m. Shortly after further explosions occurred, and then after a quiet interval the droning of other approaching aeroplanes was heard, and a quick succession of detonations followed. Finally, the aeroplanes went homewards.

The German raid on London on Tuesday night was made in the light of a full harvest moon, and under anti-cyclonic conditions, which made the night perfect for aeroplane attack, though it would have been fatal for Zeppelins.

The Royal Flying Corps intercepted at least half the raiders, and drove them back seawards. The rest reached London at a high altitude, in three relays, at intervals of 20 minutes. They did not attempt to preserve battle formation, as in daylight. They dropped their torpedoes and bombs aimlessly. The "swish" of the torpedo was sometimes the first hint of the coming horror. In one case the "swish" was heard, then there was a blinding flash, and a woman's shriek. When the smoke and dust cleared, a woman's body lay beside a huge pit in the street. Another wrecked two houses, from roof to basement, burying families.

A most exciting episode was a fight with a Gotha, whose heavy droning was sharply differentiated from the rest of the raiders. Suddenly, searchlights picked up the Gotha, which was simultaneously cornered by several aeroplanes. The Gotha veered this way and that, for 16 minutes, before it escaped eastwards. The flash of the pursuers' machine guns was plainly seen. Later, cheers were heard and ayrens shrieked, and the observers concluded that the Gotha had been brought down at sea, near Sheerness.

Londoners, generally, took shelter effectively, many carrying their children to the basements. Hence, the casualties were small.

Many took refuge in the tubes. A party of Australian soldiers, during this semi-captivity, improvised a dance on an underground platform, three theatrical violinists supplying the music.

A German communique says:—Our aviators made a successful night attack on London.

TYPICAL AIR BATTLE.

An air battle, characteristic of recent fighting on the West front, has been described. Six British machines encountered 15 Germans above the clouds. One German was shot down, and toppled out of sight, through the clouds. The next four German machines concentrated on one British machine, all successively employing the so-called "Immelmann turn." All were sent crashing down. Altogether, six Germans were brought down. The British resumed their formation. Their machines had been badly "peppered," but otherwise they were unscathed.

NEW ZEALANDER'S V.C.

Among nine soldiers who have been awarded the Victoria Cross is Corporal Leslie Wilton Andrew, a New Zealand infantryman. He showed conspicuous bravery in a charge by a small party which was to take an enemy position. Corporal Andrew's objective was a machine-gun post, which had been located in an isolated building. He was leading the men forward, when they encountered, unexpectedly, a machine-gun post which was holding up the advance of another company. Corporal Andrew immediately attacked, capturing the machine-gun and killing several of its crew. Then he continued the attack on the machine-gun post, which was the original objective. He displayed great skill and determination in his dispositions, finally capturing the post and killing several of the enemy, and putting to flight the remainder. Corporal Andrew's conduct throughout was unexampled for cool daring, initiative, and fine leadership. His magnificent example was a fine stimulant to his comrades.

LATE WAR NEWS.

HOSPITALS BOMBED.

Sir Douglas Haig, in a report issued on Thursday at 11.25 a.m., says:—There were patrol encounters east of Fleurbaix and south-east of St. Julien. Enemy aircraft bombed three hospitals on Tuesday night.

THE DUTCH MISSION.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.

The Dutch Mission to the United States has now arrived in Chicago.

FRENCH SHIPPING.

A summary of French shipping and marine losses during the week ended September 2 shows that there wer 828 arrivals and 743 departures. Three vessels over 1600 tons and nine under that tonnage were sunk. One steamer was unsuccessfully attacked.

ITALY'S BLOWS.

ROME, Sept. 6.

General Cadorna, not waiting for the enemy to take the initiative, vigorously and successfully attacked the Austrian centre and right on Tuesday. The Austrians were only able to develop a counter-attack on the left wing, but were everywhere repulsed with heavy losses. The fighting proved both the solidity of the Italian lines and the inefficiency of the enemy's artillery, deprived of adequate aeroplane support.

BRITAIN'S AERIAL DEFENCES.

Widespread newspaper criticisms of the air defences of London urge the formation of a Ministry of the Air, independent of the War Office and of the Admiralty, with its own general staff constantly thinking out problems of air tactics, and devising fresh combinations to meet such a new revolutionary force like air power. It is contended that the department would be fettered if yoked to the orthodox methods of the naval and military branches.

RUSSIA'S TRIALS.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 6.

The Government is in possession of the whole thread of the thwarted conspiracy. The arrests of the Grand Dukes were followed by those of others, including some in Tobolsk (West Siberia).

GAZA BOMBARDMENT

TURKISH REPORT.

A Turkish communique says:—There is an intense bombardment of our positions at Gaza (Southern Palestine).

REFORMS IN INDIA.

SOME MEASURE OF SELF GOVERNMENT.

SIMLA, Sept. 5.

The Viceroy of India (Lord Chelmsford), speaking at the opening of the Legislative Council to-day, made a long and important speech.

Regarding the task of constitutional reforms, the Viceroy said the British and Indian Governments were both agreed. Three roads led to the goal. The first was in the domain of local self-government—the village or town municipal council. The second was in the more responsible employment of Indians under the Government; and the third was in the domain of the legislative councils, along which an advance must be made simultaneously with advances on the other two.

The British Government had decided that substantial steps should be taken as soon as possible. He (Lord Chelmsford) had steadfastly refused to anticipate opposition to the decision of the Home Government. He said he had invited Mr. E. S. Montagu (Secretary of State for India) to visit India, and was delighted that he could accept. Mr. Montagu would not supersede the Government but would consult informally with the Viceroy, the Government, and others. He would make no public pronouncement. The Council of India and the Viceroy would leave nothing undone to enable him to receive the views of representative bodies. It was suggested that members should spend the time before his arrival in a quiet examination of arguments, and let Mr. Montagu find a calm atmosphere.

The Viceroy said that the Indian War Loan now exceeded £32,000,000. Discussing ways and means, he said the Home Government had agreed as a provisional measure to the coinage of sovereigns at the Bombay Mint, subject to reconsideration after the war. On the frontier the Mahsuds had been thoroughly chastened, and he expressed deep obligations to the Amir of Afghanistan, whose friendly influence served to discourage the tribesmen, and with whom our ties of friendship had been drawn still closer.

Finally, he said: The Government until recently has occupied a position of much difficulty. Criticisms and misunderstandings had beset us, but we were not in a position to speak. Now I am able to lift the veil, and those outside will realise that our administration has not been sterile or our policy illiberal.

Replying to a question in the Legislative Council to-day Sir William Vincent (a member of the Council of the Governor-General) said that the Government of India is prepared to recommend the Madras Government to remove the restrictions placed on Mrs. Besant, and Messrs. Wadia and Arundale, under the Defence of India laws if the Government of India is satisfied that these persons will refrain from unconstitutional and violent methods of political agitation during the remainder of the war.

The Government was actuated by the confident hope that the recent announcement of his Majesty's Government, and the approaching visit of Mr. E. S. Montagu (Secretary of State for India) would have a tranquilising effect on the political situation. The Government was also prepared, subject to the same conditions, to take the same course regarding other persons restricted under the Defence of India rules owing to their violent methods of political agitation.

Sir William Vincent also announced that the local government authorities would be consulted regarding the institution of tribunals or committees for the examination of internment cases.

GENERAL CABLES.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.

Mrs. Helen Morris, widow of a wealthy meat packer, has married Mr. Francis Neilson, who was at one time a member of the British Parliament.

A STONE ON THE LINE.

SINGLETON, Thursday.

In the juvenile court to-day Augustus Carnall Garland, aged 14 years, was charged with having, at Caswell, on August 30, placed a stone on the railway line likely to endanger the safety of persons travelling. The stone weighed 1001b, and was 12 inches long and 24 inches in circumference.

The police magistrate ordered that the boy be sent to Gosford Farm for Boys for such a period as the Minister for Justice shall direct. He remarked that he was glad to see that the strikers were in no way to blame.

WAR NOTES.

AISNE HEIGHTS AGAIN ATTACKED.

The French communiques published this morning mention the defeat of three successive enemy attacks delivered against the north-eastern portion of the heights above the Aisne. The first of these attacks was launched against the Casemates Plateau, and the other two against the California Plateau. There is nothing new about these three attacks, which have met with much the same fate as the numerous similar ventures directed towards those two positions during the past few months. What we are interested in, however, is the reason which prompts the enemy repeatedly to renew his attacks on these positions when his efforts in the past have shown such poor results. Military critics in England and France have supplied various explanations as to the object of these continually recurring German attacks along the heights of the Aisne, and particularly those in the region of Hurtebise and the two plateaus mentioned above. It has been contended that this portion of the front is practically the German left flank of the north-south portion of the western line, and that the enemy must preserve his positions here if his line between this point and the Belgian coast is to sustain the pressure to which it is being subjected. Others prefer to believe that it merely reveals the fixed German belief that they can bleed the French armies white. Another explanation of the cause of the attacks is that the amount of ground to be gained here is so small that the enemy refuses to believe that he cannot make the slight advance necessary for him to secure possession of it.

CALIFORNIA AND CASEMATES.

An examination of the terrain on which the two attacks reported this morning were made shows that there is much to be said in favour of the latter theory mentioned above. The older staff maps of this particular region did not contain the names of these two plateaus, although it was possible to locate them roughly from the references made in the earlier French communiques. An excellent little map, drawn to a scale equal to about an inch to the 1000 yards, appears in "L'Illustration," received by the last mail, and leaves no doubt as to which portions of the Aisne heights constitute the two plateaus referred to so often during the fighting of the past few months. This shows California Plateau at the extreme north-eastern end of the Aisne heights, the town of Craonne being situated on its south-eastern slopes. It is from here that the French look out over the low-lying Champagne country to the eastward, and are able to observe the movements along the roads and railways behind portion of the enemy's line there. The summit of the plateau is not more than 700 yards across from north to south at its widest part, and a narrow neck of high ground, a little over 300 yards wide at the summit, connects it with the Casemates Plateau, which lies immediately to the west-south-west of California Plateau. The summit of the Casemates Plateau is about 700 yards across at its widest point. A successful German advance of about half a mile along a front of about a mile and a half would probably give them possession of both plateaus; but, although both positions are honey-combed with shell-holes and thousands of German troops have fallen near the northern slopes, that comparatively small advance has not yet been made.

WITHDRAWAL OF RUSSIAN RIGHT.

Although the Petrograd correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" suggests that the moral of the Russian troops on the Riga front is nearly as bad as it can be, news from more authoritative sources is not so depressing. M. Kerensky shows that the enemy's success was achieved as a result of his superiority in artillery, and the Minister for War announces that the Russians are retiring in perfect order, and in conformity with a pre-arranged plan. This is a very different story to that which the Russian officials told when the Southern Russian armies were retreating in Galicia. The Commissioner to the Commander on the Northern Russian front suggests that this plan, which of course had to be arranged when it was realised that the troops to the westward of Riga could not hold up the German offensive, provides for the occupation by the Russians of a new line passing northward from Friedrichstadt to the eastern side of the Gulf of Riga, and crossing the Riga-Petrograd road and railway at a point about half-way between Riga and the town of Wenden. The next day or two should show whether the Russians will be able to hold such a line, as they must already be very close to it at places. Wenden is situated on the Riga-Petrograd railway, about 48 miles to the north-east of Riga. Segewold, where, according to their communique, the Russians have already arrived, is also on this railway, about 29 miles north-east of Riga. They are therefore already more than half-way to Wenden. The village of Lemburg, another point reached by the retiring Russians, is on the Great Jagel River, almost due north of Friedrichstadt. The Russians must therefore be very close to the new line on which they propose to make a stand.

FINLAND AND THE RIGA FRONT.

The real reason which caused Germany to concentrate guns and troops on the Riga sector, and to strike a blow here before the Russian troops had recovered from the ill-effects of the revolution, is known only to a few prominent Germans who are not likely to satisfy our curiosity in this respect. While it may not explain the German intention, the following extract from the official report of Dr. Christian L. Lange is interesting in view of the capture of Riga. Dr. Lange, who is the secretary of the Inter-Parliamentary Union and correspondent of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, wrote the report on April 20 last, after a special investigation in Russia undertaken at the instance of the Carnegie Endowment. "It is no secret," he says, "that during the war numerous young Finns have crossed the frontier to go to Germany, where hundreds of them have been trained as officers to lead an eventual Finnish insurrection. It is said that thousands of young men in Finland itself have been equipped in secret for military service; two pairs of boots, a winter coat, a gun, etc. But it was understood that no movement was to be initiated if the Germans did not succeed in throwing artillery across the Gulf of Finland. Hence the extreme importance of the Riga front." The scheme referred to was devised before the revolution, and it is doubtful whether the Finns would support it under present circumstances.

AUSTRIAN ATTEMPT TO HIT BACK.

The renewal of the Italian offensive on the Bainsizza Plateau and against the heights to the north-east of Gorizia has been met by a counter-stroke on the part of the Austrians along the Carso front. This counter-attack against the Italian right near the coast was evidently intended to interfere with the additional blow which the Italians further northward were preparing to deliver. It was also hoped that it would relieve the pressure which the Italians were bringing to bear upon the northern side of Mount Hermada as a result of their recent steady progress along the Brestovizza Valley. The Austrian blow extended from Castagnavizza, in the centre of the Carso Plateau, to the sea. It gained some temporary success down towards the southern half of the front attacked, but the Italians claim that their counter-attack brought them back to the positions which they had previously reached in the Brestovizza Valley and on the slopes of Mount Hermada. Whether this Austrian diversion seriously interfered with the Italian attack to the northward or not we have no means of saying. The Italians have certainly not yet officially claimed the capture of the important Monte San Gabriele, although it is perfectly clear that there is some very severe fighting going on in the vicinity of the height. The capture of an important position south-west of Okroglo represents a renewal of the Italian push on the Bainsizza Plateau, the village mentioned being situated south slightly west of Cal, near one of the most easterly points reached by the Italians in their last advance.

THE STRIKE

DEVELOPING COAL SUPPLIES

MORE VOLUNTEERS AT WORK

GOVERNMENT MANIFESTO

STRIKE SECRETLY PLANNED

An increased output of coal is being made at the Wallarah mine. The production is now nearly normal at this mine.

Volunteers are still offering, and arrangements are progressing for opening up more collieries.

A further review of the whole strike position was made by the Acting Premier last night.

Mr. Fuller declares that after the last general elections secret meetings were held in Sydney, and an elaborate plan prepared for the calling of a general strike on a given signal, without reference to the different unions.

Such a strike was not to be industrial but political, he says, and its object was not to remedy grievances but to achieve a political purpose.

The Acting Premier further declares that the union which precipitated the strike with a 24-hours' ultimatum was a party to this arrangement.

Reports of heavy goods and stock traffic on the railways are supplied by the Chief Railway Commissioner. Further considerable improvements have also been affected in the passenger services.

Wednesday's tramway revenue was a record since the strike started.

Up till Wednesday night a total of 5820 strikers had been re-employed in the railway and tramway services, including 2401 locomotive men and 1172 tramway men. The number of new hands employed totalled 3051.

Mr. Fraser declared yesterday that the number of engine failures since the resumption of the services during the strike has been remarkably low, amounting to only one-third of the failures per mileage run in August, 1916, and July, 1917.

The Australian Gaslight Company is asking for more volunteer labour. This is taken as an indication that its operations are being carried on successfully.

The strike has held up the shipbuilding industry in Australia, but the Prime Minister is endeavouring to start the industry in Tasmania, where conditions are less disturbed.

The Amalgamated Society of Engineers and the Boilermakers and Shipwrights' Society in Victoria were instructed by the Strike Committee not to work with volunteer workers.

The executives of these unions refused to accede to this request, declining to accept orders from the Strike Committee.

VOLUNTEER SHOT.

WOUNDED IN WRIST.

COWARDLY OUTRAGE.

An attempt was made yesterday afternoon to shoot a volunteer wharf labourer whilst he was working alongside a steamer at No. 1 Wharf, Dawes Point.

A bullet was fired by some person unknown, and entered the back of the left hand of David Bolte, aged 21, a resident of West Wyalong, but at present camping at the Sydney Cricket Ground.

Bolte was employed by the Vacuum Oil Company, with five other volunteers, to unload the company's steam-lighter Plume. The Plume was fully loaded with casks of lubricating and case oil at the Vacuum works, and then taken alongside a steamer at No. 1 Wharf, Dawes Point.

Whilst the Plume was being made fast alongside the steamer the report of a firearm was heard, and almost simultaneously a "ping" of a bullet and a cry from Bolte, who was sitting on an oil cask at the stern of the Plume. The shot entered the back of the left hand, and came out in the front, drilling a hole through the hand and inflicting a nasty wound.

Bolte was immediately taken to the wharf office, where his wound was dressed by an officer of the steamer, and then conveyed by the Civil Ambulance to the Sydney Hospital, and later being treated he was allowed to return to the Cricket Ground. To-morrow morning an X-ray photograph is to be taken of the wound. Bolte's position was such that had the bullet gone a little to one side it would have entered the heart.

The shooting took place at about 3.30 p.m., just behind the Water Police Station, and immediately it was known Inspector Wallace communicated with the police headquarters, and several detectives made an investigation.

From inquiries made by the police there is no doubt that the bullet was fired from a rifle, and the aim was taken deliberately and from a well-elevated position. This latter theory is borne out by the angle of descent in which the bullet struck Bolte's hand.

The street behind the wharf—Lower Fort-street—overlooks the position of the lighter. The police believe that the shot was fired from the street, and under cover—possibly from a window of a house.

A guard was on duty outside the wharf, and it would be well nigh impossible for anyone to have fired from the road on the wharf level.

Unsuccessful search was made for the spent bullet amongst the casks and cases on the lighter.

LOYAL WORKER'S WIFE.

DRAWS A REVOLVER.

BATHURST, Thursday.

The wife of a loyal worker was taking her husband's dinner to him at the railway yards when she was balled up by a bunch of pickets. The men told her she could not proceed, whereupon she drew a revolver, and the coterie of pickets decamped.

CLYDE.

ENGINEERS ON STRIKE.

REPAIR WORK TO GO ON.

The whole of the engineers employed at the Clyde engineering works went on strike yesterday, in consequence of the company's determination to accept repair work from the Railway Commissioners. About 70 men are affected. This number included the members of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, as well as those belonging to the Australian Society of Engineers, who were not required owing to the fact that all stock work had been stopped.

The work of repairing the locomotives, however, will not be delayed, as the company has a sufficient number of artisans to continue ordinary and Government work. Should any more hands be required, the management does not contemplate that there will be any difficulty in engaging them.

In normal times the Clyde Engineering Company employed between 1500 and 1600 men, but this number has been gradually reduced to about 500 owing to the reduced demand for machinery. In addition, the company is under contract to manufacture locomotives for the Government, and is well ahead of schedule time. For a long period before the strike the company had been endeavouring to get repair work in order to keep as many men as possible in employment, and negotiations were entered into with the Railway Commissioners, with the result that the Commissioners recently decided to send a number of defective locomotives to Clyde for repairs.

Referring to a statement made by one of the strike leaders in the Domain on Wednesday, questioning whether the Railway Commissioners had a sufficient number of men to do the repair work, it was stated by an official yesterday that the locomotives which had been sent to the Clyde Engineering Company's workshops for repairs had been built by that company, who had undertaken to keep them in repair. It was not true that the mechanical staff at Eveleigh was unable to cope with ordinary running repairs.

"Our advices from Clyde," he continued, "indicate that whether the men go on strike or not, the company will have a sufficient number of mechanics to go on with the work."

FEWER ENGINE FAILURES.

Replying to statements by the Strike Defence Committee, Mr. Fraser, Chief Railway Commissioner, yesterday quoted some remarkable figures about engine failures during the strike.

"As so much is being made by the Defence Committee of the deplorable condition into which engines are getting owing to the partial absence of skilled workers from the railway workshops," said Mr. Fraser, "it may be of interest to restate the fact that the locomotives are being kept in absolutely satisfactory running condition in every respect, and this is supported by the fact that during August, 1917, there were fewer locomotive failures than during any similar period on record.

"The engine failures during that month averaged one to 26,500 miles, as compared with one to 7892 miles in July, 1916, one to 8874 miles in July, 1917, and one to 9214 miles in August, 1916; that is to say, the engine failures have only been one-third of those which occur under normal conditions."

TRAIN WRECKERS.

ON SOUTH COAST

A SIGNALMAN'S DISCOVERY.

BELLAMBI, Thursday.

An attempt was made last night to wreck the passenger train from Sydney to Wollongong by placing a kerosene tin full of heavy bolts on four feet of railway line between Bellambi and Corrimal.

The train leaves Sydney at 6.25 p.m., and is due at its destination at 9 p.m. The driver and passengers were unaware of their narrow escape until the train reached Wollongong. The dastardly action was discovered by one of the night signalmen on his way home on a railway tricycle.

While passing under one of the overhead bridges, a signalman was subjected to a fusilade of stones. Fortunately he escaped unhurt.

As a result of the cowardly action of those concerned in attempting to wreck the train and to injure the signalman additional precautions will be taken to patrol the railway line at night time from Bulli to Wollongong. The South Coast railway line, since the attempt on the life of Fireman Green, has been regularly patrolled by the police between Clifton and Coledale for nearly a fortnight. As the result of last night's outrage, it will be necessary to guard the line further south.

ALLEGED INCITING TO STRIKE.

APPEALS TO RAILWAY FETTLERS.

John Kearney, 31, appeared before Mr. Burton Smith, S.M., at the Central Police Court yesterday. The charge was that on August 13, near Valley Heights, accused unlawfully incited Edward A. Hartigan, Arthur Wagner, Arthur John Benoit, James M'Phee, William Slater, Ronald Davey, William Beach, and William Proctor, employees of the New South Wales Railway Commissioners, to neglect their duties and voluntarily and obstinately to absent themselves from the place appointed for the performance of those duties.

It was stated that Hartigan is a ganger and Beach an acting ganger on the railways. The other men named in the information are fettlers. The offence was alleged to have been committed by accused, as a strike organiser, on the Blue Mountains line near Springwood.

Mr. Bathgate, Crown Law Department, appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Sheridan (instructed by Messrs. C. A. Coghlan and Co.) for the defence.

Mr. Bathgate said that accused, as the organiser for the Railway and Tramway Association, went by motor bicycle and sidecar to certain lengths of the railway near Springwood on August 13, and attempted to induce small gangs of men to leave their work and join the strikers. Between Springwood and Linden Kearney distributed a strike leaflet with the signature of Claude Thompson, the general secretary of the Railway and Tramway Association.

William Proctor said he was working with three mates, when accused came up. Accused said, "What: have you been scabbing all the week?" Witness replied, "Yes, if you call it scabbing. We are not coming out on strike in sympathy with shirkers who won't do a day's work."

At the conclusion of the case for the prosecution accused said, "I reserve my defence." He was committed for trial at the Quarter Sessions on October 2.

On the application of Mr. Sheridan, who asked that the bail should be reduced from £200, the amounts were fixed at self in £100 and two sureties in £50 or one in £100.

GAS STRIKE.

The fact that the Australian Gaslight Company has asked for more labour is an indication that its operations are extending satisfactorily under the new order of things, and that it is meeting successfully the initial difficulties with which it is faced. There are now over 300 volunteers at Mortlake, and they are reported to be shaping well. Mortlake is the company's principal manufacturing department.

LOYAL SERVICE BUREAU.

At the Women's Loyal Service Bureau, Education-building, yesterday, numerous requests for women workers were received. Owing to the system of classification, volunteers were soon allotted to the various employments. A large shipping company is taking 50 women as waitresses, cooks, and pantry girls. A meat preserving works sent in a request for women packers, and another squad of volunteers were told off to a wholesale grocery firm. Cooks and assistant cooks will soon start work in a volunteer camp, and for another camp the mending and darning will be done by women from the Loyal Service Bureau. The officials have received letters from the firms saying that for efficiency and speed the bureau workers in their employ easily made a record.

LOYAL RAILWAY SERVANT.

Mr. Cox, of Wyalong-street, Burwood, who has had 36 years' service in the New South Wales Government Railways, as well as 16 years in the English railways, and who holds the long-service medal from the Imperial Government, on the commencement of the strike offered his services to the Government. Unfortunately, Mr. Cox, who is over 70 years of age, was compelled to relinquish the duties he had voluntarily taken up on account of ill-health.

Mr. C. A. Hodgson, Outdoor Superintendent of the New South Wales Government Railways, has written the following letter to Mr. Cox:—"I take this opportunity of further expressing my personal appreciation of the loyalty you have shown to the department in coming forward at this trying time, and giving your assistance, although enjoying a well-earned rest after so many years of faithful service."

RAILWAY WORKS STOPPED.

OTFORD, Thursday.

As a result of the strike Otford deviation works, employing 300 hands, have been temporarily closed down.

LABOUR COUNCIL.

The following motion was carried at last night's meeting of the New South Wales Trades and Labour Council:—

"That we urge all unionists and their supporters to refrain from committing any acts of violence, and all acts that may tend to provoke violence, as in the opinion of this council violence is only justified as a last resort—as a means of self-defence. And, further, that this council realises that it is useless to call upon loyalists to refrain from acts of violence whilst incitements to violence are uttered by Ministers of the Crown."

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES.

Mr. Tyrell (president of the Municipal Employees' Union) said last night that he understood that the employees in the maintenance department of the City Council had received a week's notice on account of the lack of material, such as tar and metal. If the strike concluded before a week terminated the notice would not take effect. At the termination of the strike he was also given to understand that the employees would be re-engaged, and they would not be deprived of their annual holidays or long-service leave.

USE OF ELECTRICITY.

The board controlling the electricity supplied by the City Council issued the following statement yesterday concerning the external lighting of shops to-night:—"Notwithstanding the total restriction placed upon the use of external lamps, one lamp of not more than 600 candle-power may be used between the hours of 4.30 p.m. and 9.30 p.m. for every 20 feet of frontage, but this concession only applies to those shops which close at 6 o'clock on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, and the concession does not apply to those shops which remain open on other nights than Friday."

A similar concession to the foregoing has been made for shops which are open on no other night except Friday by the Parramatta Electricity Control Board. This board has also issued a notification permitting the use of electric smoothing irons for domestic and industrial purposes between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. every day except Saturday and Sunday.

COAL INDUSTRY.

GOVERNMENT MINE.

INCREASING OUTPUT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

CATHERINE HILL BAY, Thursday.

There are new signs every day of the steady return to normal conditions at Wallarah colliery; it may be underground or on the surface, or yet beyond the confines of the colliery, but wherever it is the sign can be read by all who care to see, including the resident miners—the old hands on strike. Of course, no one other than those now working at the colliery or having business there is allowed near the colliery, as there are police pickets on duty day and night. The colliery trains are now running backwards and forwards between the pit and the jetty all day long, and it is easy to calculate the amount of coal being shipped; but that does not give the output actually being mined, as there are large reserve stocks in the bins which can be shipped at need. So the old miners resident, though they are near the pit, do not know what coal is actually being won. Some ridiculous figures purporting to represent the output from the colliery have been made public by the federation in Newcastle.

There has been a steady increase in the output, and a record amount was put out to-day. Most of the initial difficulties have been overcome, thanks to the perseverance and earnestness of the underground staff, and the colliery is now receiving all the advantages resulting from the sound foundation laid by the pioneers—the few officials who had to start working the colliery with raw material supplemented by a few experienced miners. The scheme has reached that stage of progress now when it can safely be said that the problem of working a large colliery with outside labour has been satisfactorily solved. It is now only a question of building upon an organised industrial fabric, and as that is done the output must automatically increase, and to what extent it will increase is now only a matter of calculating the number of men who can be employed in the colliery.

Following the arrival of many capable officials yesterday, another party came by the collier Tuggerah to-day. They included deputies and miners, all men who can be sent into the colliery at once. The expert staff is now almost complete, sufficient at all events to train a large number of men who have up to the present been engaged in work about the camp. Some men have returned to Sydney either as unfit or for private reasons, but the efficiency of the scheme has not been reduced, as plenty of others, many of them expert miners, have filled their places.

Down below the work is running almost with normal smoothness, and another district was opened up to-day, and half a dozen machines are now cutting coal.

HANDLING COAL AND COKE.

COLEDALE, Thursday.

The work of removing coal at grass at Central Kembla and the shovelling of coke at North Bulli and Bellambi is proceeding satisfactorily. One train load of 400 tons of coke passed through for Sydney this afternoon.

POLICE COURT CHARGES.

LITHGOW, Thursday.

At the Police Court this morning James Albert Teer was charged with having made use of offensive language in connection with the arrival of volunteer workers at Lithgow on the previous day. The words complained of were: "I'll take all you scabs out on the green and fight you, one at a time, ten rounds."

The defendant pleaded guilty, and evidence was given that there was a crowd of eight or nine hundred people present, and that stones were thrown at the police.

The magistrate, Mr. H. L. Meads, said that such words might well lead to a riot, and at a time such as the present it might be reasonably feared that such an occurrence would involve loss of life. Under the circumstances he must take a serious view of the matter, and inflict the maximum penalty of £5, or imprisonment for one month.

A procession of men from Portland took place at Cullen Bullen yesterday. The proceedings were quiet until a number of men caught sight of volunteer gantry boys at the Invincible colliery. They were variously described, and, as a result, three men were arrested at Portland, and this morning they appeared before Mr. F. T. Goodman, J.P. Robert Staines and John Coops were each fined £5, or imprisonment for one month, for using indecent language, while Phillips Coops was similarly dealt with on a charge of assaulting Constable Ferguson.

POLICE AND STRIKERS.

An emphatic denial was given by the Inspector-General of Police yesterday to the report that while a disturbance was in progress at Lithgow on Wednesday the police drew their batons and used them on the strikers. "Some trouble did take place, but there were certainly no batons used by the police," he added.

VOLUNTEERS AT LITHGOW.

LITHGOW, Thursday.

The enginedrivers ceased work yesterday at Lithgow pit shortly after the voluntary workers arrived, and their places have been filled from among the men who were sent. Local deputies and shot-firers have also refused to work with other than unionists.

A start was made with the voluntary workmen this morning, and a few trucks of unionhewed coal, which had been left in the workings, have been brought to the surface. All points of vantage are closely guarded by the police, but though there were a few interested onlookers, who indulged in ironical cheering this morning when the ponies were taken into the pit, everything is very quiet. A number of special constables were sworn in this morning for railway purposes.

LOCO. MEN.

WANT NO VICTIMISATION.

A meeting of the Sydney branch of Locomotive Drivers, Firemen, and Cleaners' Association was held at Newtown yesterday. A motion was carried to the effect that the meeting reaffirm the previous decision not to return to work until an agreement was arrived at that there should be no victimisation, and a tribunal granted, with full powers to consider the railwaymen's grievances. And further, that the motion be conveyed to their executive as being the attitude of the branch.

THE PREFERENCE CLAUSE.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the Arbitration Court to-day Mr. Justice Higgins directed that the order made last week, striking out clause 9 of the Waterside Workers' award, 1915, should issue, and said that the order would apply to two branches of the Waterside Workers' Federation in Melbourne, and to the Sydney (N.S.W.) and Fremantle (W.A.) branches. He added that if it was true that men had been told they must submit to the degradation of going to the National Bureau to seek employment at the wharfs that was not the way to get the work of the country carried on.

PAINTERS AND DECORATORS' UNION.

Mr. Wheeler, of the Ship Painters and Dockers' Union, at last night's meeting of the Labour Council, gave notice of a motion that the attitude of the Amalgamated Painters and Decorators' Union in regard to the present industrial upheaval be considered at the next meeting of the council. He added that the conduct of the union at this juncture was unbecoming of trade unionism.

At a meeting of the Painters and Decorators' Union last Monday night it was decided to reaffirm its previous decision to remain neutral in regard to the strike.

PROFESSOR MACINTYRE'S EFFORTS.

Professor Macintyre, chairman of the State Recruiting Committee, has been in touch with the Government in an effort to effect a settlement of the strike, but he declined, when questioned last night, to state the precise nature of his negotiations. He said he considered it inadvisable to discuss these interviews in the Press.

STRIKERS RE-EMPLOYED.

Up to Wednesday night 5820 strikers had been re-employed in the railway and tramway services, and 3051 new hands had been employed since the commencement of the strike.

DEBATE IN PARLIAMENT.

MR. TUDOR'S MOTION.

PRIME MINISTER'S VIGOROUS REPLY.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the House of Representatives this afternoon the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Tudor) moved the adjournment of the House to discuss the desirability of the Government taking action to bring about a just settlement of the industrial disturbances. Every member of the House, said Mr. Tudor, would agree that this was the greatest industrial crisis that had ever visited Australia. All that he asked was for the Government to intervene and claim a just settlement. There had never been a more spontaneous uprising. The trouble of the defence committee had been not to get men to come out but to keep the men in. That had happened right along the line.

Mr. Gregory (Western Australia): You will find it hard to make us believe that.

Mr. Tudor said they were not anxious to do anything like that which was being done by the newspapers. They fanned the flames. The State Governments had got spies going round the union meetings. It had been said that this trouble was political and not industrial. That was absolutely wrong. The men had come out in New South Wales on account of the card system. He himself had experience of speeding-up in America, and he hoped it would never be introduced in Australia or any part of the British Empire. The worst system that could be introduced was the Taylor card system. It was the Commissioner for Railways who had precipitated this trouble.

Mr. Rodgers (Victoria): Does that justify the men here in Victoria coming out on strike?

Mr. Tudor said that only one side of this trouble had been placed before the people in Australia. Some men had said they had seen this thing coming for years—that there must be a fight between capital and labour.

Mr. Heittmann (Western Australia): Who started the fight?

Mr. Tudor: The Commissioner in New South Wales. He introduced the system.

Mr. Corser (Q.): Who started it here?

Mr. Tudor: Once a thing like this was started no one could tell where it would end.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) said that he had waited in vain to hear from Mr. Tudor some definite and concrete statement by way of justification for the present strike. He said, without hesitation, that there was no justification whatever for the statement that there was a conspiracy in existence in the community to crush unionism. So far from there being a conspiracy to strike at unionism, there was a conspiracy to injure Britain, disintegrate the Empire, and hamper the war policy, a conspiracy made up of violent extremists, syndicalists, and Sinn Feiners. Any man who would shut his eyes to those obvious facts, must either be a fool or must be doing do deliberately for the purpose of deceiving himself. Mr. Tudor had endeavoured to picture certain conditions in America, and to urge that it followed that if the card system were introduced those same conditions would be experienced here. Such an assertion was an attempt to bluff the people. The trouble was that there was, and had been, for some time in this country, an insidious propaganda not to speed up, but to slow down. (Ministerial cheers.) There could be no suspicion in the present case of profiteering or that some bowelless individual was going to make a profit out of speeding up the workers. This was a State enterprise, over which the people had ample control. Parliament could alter the whole system, and the people could alter the whole Parliament. The railway system was what the people of the whole State determined it should be. That was Socialism, if there was anything in Socialism at all. What the strikers meant by Socialism was that they should govern and the rest of the people should have no voice at all. (Ministerial cheers.) Having had long experience of unions, he declared that there had grown up, during the last half-dozen years, a spirit of insubordination that made the government of unions, as he used to know it, absolutely impossible. Mr. Catts and himself had been associated in a great industrial upheaval or the prevention of one in 1913 and 1914, when the great New Zealand strike had threatened to spread to Australia. They had banded together about 150,000, embracing the waterside workers, coal miners, and the A.W.U., and they had prevented the strike from coming here. They had ordered, and their orders had been obeyed by the unionists, that they should handle black coal and work black boats. To-day such a thing was impossible. The trouble with unions now was not to get the men out—any fool could do that—but to keep them in. This was an attempt on the part of those responsible for the debacle on May 5 and the wreck of the great Labour movement of Australia to get even. He said deliberately that there had been hatched a conspiracy before the conscription referendum to declare a general strike if the conscription referendum were carried. He defied any man to deny it.

Mr. Finlayson (Qld.): I deny it.

Mr. Hughes said he had absolute proof of it.

In the Senate a similar motion, dealing with the strike, was introduced by the leader of the Opposition (Senator Gardiner), who stated that the strike was forced on the men during the war by the introduction of a system that was obnoxious.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council (Senator Millen) said he saw no evidence of an attack on unionism. It was tragic that, when the country was fighting for its existence, and the Empire was trembling in the balance, public men like Senator Gardiner should give expression to sentiments which would practically urge the men to continue their ill-advised actions.

The motion was defeated on the voices.

ROOM FOR COMPROMISE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have refrained hitherto from making any comment on the strike, and mainly because I feared to prejudice any promising negotiations that might be going on.

But as no settlement is in sight, as, on the contrary, both sides seem drifting further and further away from any possibility of mutual understanding, I feel that I may, without impropriety, express my opinion of the situation in which we now find ourselves.

It is unfortunate perhaps that I am obliged to begin with a statement of principles which, at first sight, seem to destroy all basis for compromise and mediation. Yet, the first step to the cure of any disease is honest diagnosis.

In a democracy such as ours is I can find no rational grounds for entering upon a strike. The people of Australia, the majority of whom are of the working class, are free to make and unmake laws. In order, ostensibly, to make an end of the foolishness of strikes, they provided themselves with a very complete machinery for the investigation of grievance and for rectifying any wrongs that can be proved to exist. If the law and the machinery do not work well, they can be modified or abolished. This is the democratic ideal. But this ideal requires obedience to the laws which the people have themselves made and respect for all lawful agreements voluntarily entered into.

It has become clear, however, that many working men in this country have been seduced, much to their own hurt, into a wholly undemocratic attitude to laws and government. They still take part in the political life of the democracy, but refuse to be bound by anything that democracy decides upon.

There is no meeting-place between constitutional democracy, with freedom secured by legal agreement, and the anarchy of direct action, which, in the last analysis, turns out to be autocracy pure and simple, the autocracy of groups of men who claim the right to coerce the whole community without so much as a "by your leave."

In this strike there is one issue and one issue only. It has nothing to do with the card system or any other grievance, real or imaginary. The issue is whether the Australian people are going to have an orderly and decent communal life, or whether they are going to hand themselves over to anarchy, which, as already pointed out, is synonymous with the autocracy of irresponsible and constantly changing groups.

The ultimatum of the strikers, stripped of all its trimmings, means this, and nothing else: The talk of grievances, no matter how real, is only a device for hiding from the majority the true character of the challenge, which the ultimatum contained. It was a summons to democratic government to abdicate in favour of government by autocratic juntas.

Further, it is evident that we have long been drifting away from the democratic ideal. We seem now to have reached a stage in which laws and agreements are no more than "scraps of paper," to be torn up by any group capable of sufficiently inconveniencing or bullying a long-suffering community, loth to use force even against a chronic tyranny.

That is the position, as it appears to a strictly rational survey. It seems to offer no hope of compromise. The issue must be fought out. Democracy and anarchy (alias group autocracy) cannot possibly exist side by side in the same country.

But, on further reflection, these conclusions may seem to be too hard and definite. Reason, after all, plays but a small part in human affairs. Regarded with the critical eye of reason, the strike is irrational and utterly foolish, because it solves no difficulty, throws the industry of a continent into disorder, and entails a great deal of suffering to no purpose. Few of us, however, are guided solely by reason. The majority of the strikers think themselves good democrats. The issue to them appears to be something quite different from what the law states it to be, and they may be sincere and honest in their belief. To them it may well be an issue between the autocracy of management and what they regard as the human right of the worker to have a voice in regard to any changes which may seriously affect his welfare. And, in this connection, grievances and bad management, now and in the past, have a relevance which, on a rational survey, one was obliged to deny them.

Although the men at the Randwick workshops were entirely mistaken in identifying the "card" with the Taylor system, they were nevertheless probably right in suspecting that the "card" was a first step in the direction of higher efficiency and reduced labour-cost. It was easy and natural, therefore, for alarmists and designing leaders to scent the coming of a full-fledged Taylor system, under another name; and, rightly or wrongly, the working classes in Australia have come to regard that system as a device for over-driving, and as a conspiracy to break up craft skill and unionism. Their fears are to a large extent baseless; but the Taylor system does contain features which neither workmen nor economists can approve. It is evident, then, that the apprehension of the workers at Randwick was perfectly genuine, and that it had some foundation. Nor is it so very surprising that many of them were honestly convinced that the introduction of the card was really a violation of the Commissioners' pledge not to alter industrial conditions during the currency of the war. Is it so unlikely also that many honestly believed that a strike was the only effective weapon against autocratic changes in shop practice, about which they had not been consulted, and the effects of which they feared? Behind it all, too, was an instinctive repugnance to that kind of autocracy which lingers in the phrase "master and servant," an autocracy which the war is making as obsolete as the dodo, except in Australia.

Now, we may believe, as I do, that the men committed a grave error of judgment in resorting to a strike, and that they have been wofully misled by men who have quite other axes to grind; and yet we may still recognise that they were actuated by a genuine fear, and by an honest conviction of the rightness of their cause.

It is true the Commissioners were right in trying to introduce more efficient methods in their workshops. It is also true that there is no particle of evidence to show that they aimed at undue speeding-up. They wanted obviously to reduce labour cost, but reduced labour cost is compatible with high wages, and a method of work that neither wastes nor exhausts the energy of the worker. It is true, moreover, that the Government had no alternative but to reject the ultimatum. It had to be firm or abdicate in favour of the Strike Committee. But firmness, tempered as it was with great moderation, may easily and imperceptibly become a little too firm, a little too unyielding, a little too autocratic, a little too insensitive to the hundred and one things which influence human action, but cannot easily be brought into crisp, definite statements of principle.

For these reasons, I hope the door will not be closed to mediation. The Government should welcome any honest attempt to obviate that hardening of opinion which is fast taking place, and is offering an insuperable barrier to a satisfactory settlement.

I am, etc., R. F. IRVINE.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MALTESE IMMIGRANTS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

In the House of Representatives to-day, the Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), replying to Mr. Higgs (Q.) as to the exclusion of a number of Maltese from Australia at the time of the conscription referendum, said that these Maltese had remained in New Caledonia for about three months, and had then returned to Australia, where all but six, who were rejected on account of disease, had been admitted. The Commonwealth had paid £2334 for their maintenance while in New Caledonia.

The Prime Minister informed Mr. Higgs that at a conference attended by more than ninety representatives of all branches of the wool trade, and held in the Cabinet room on November 22, two nominations had been lodged for the representation of fellmongers and woolscourers' interests on the Central Wool Committee. A vote had been taken, which had resulted in Mr. F. W. Hughes's election. Since then the woolscourers had asked that Mr. P. M'William, of Sydney, a member of the New South Wales State Wool Committee, should represent them on the central committee. There were no vacancies, however, on the Central Wool Committee at present.

Replying to Mr. Heitmann (W.A.), the Assistant Minister for Defence (Mr. Groom) stated that the officers attached to the different military branches who had not volunteered and had no good reasons for not doing so, had been deprived of their commissions. The whole matter was again being reviewed, in order that action might be taken with regard to officers still serving whose reasons for not volunteering were considered insufficient.

STATE PARLIAMENT.

A 28-HOURS' SITTING.

PASSING THE ESTIMATES.

After sitting continuously for 28 hours, from 4 p.m. on Wednesday, the Legislative Assembly adjourned at 8 o'clock last night till Tuesday next. Practically the whole of the time was occupied by the Opposition "stonewalling" the Estimates, several departments being at length put through by the application of the closure and the use of the Government majority.

The whole of Wednesday night was devoted to a discussion on the Railway estimates. Opposition members urged the Government to adopt a conciliatory attitude in dealing with the present industrial crisis.

Mr. Price referred to the establishment of State sawmills, and to an inquiry which, he proposed, should be instituted. Land that would not feed a bandicoot was being resumed for soldiers at prices in excess of value.

The Acting Minister for Lands (Mr. Grahame) said that Mr. Price had never missed an opportunity to place the Minister for Lands in a false light. He (Mr. Price) had stated that the Minister for Lands had been guilty of entering into certain contracts and the buying of certain properties, and that the amounts spent in connection with those properties had been smothered up and had not appeared on the Estimates. He (Mr. Grahame), however, had drawn his attention to the fact that the amounts appeared on the Estimates dealt with last year, and were passed. If Mr. Price were in the House on the occasion, then he had no right to make a charge against the Minister for Lands in the latter's absence after the House had passed the amounts. It was up to him (Mr. Grahame) to explain the position. "I challenge the hon. member," added Mr. Grahame, "to make any definite statement on the purchase of the sawmills and on the resumption of land, and if so the Government will appoint a commission to inquire into it immediately. If he fails to substantiate his charges, then he should go out of public life."

The balance of the Lands Department estimates were passed, and the House at 10 minutes past 8 adjourned until 4.30 p.m. on Tuesday next.

STATE PRODUCE AGENCY.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

In the Legislative Assembly a bill has been introduced providing for the establishment and regulation of a State produce agency. The Minister is empowered to establish, regulate, and control cold stores, markets, depots, grain silos, shops, factories, and preserving and canning works.

A bill has also been introduced providing for the licensing of farm produce agents.

SUGAR-CANE PRICES.

BRISBANE, Thursday.

The Sugar-cane Prices Amending Bill, which passed the Legislative Assembly late last night, provides that if a sugar mill fails to take delivery of cane or crush it, the Government may step in and work the mill, and if a loss ensues during the working of the mill by the Government, the mill owner will be called upon to pay the amount to the Minister.

MR. WILLIAM TRICKETT'S DEATH

NORFOLK ISLAND, Thursday.

The funeral of the late Mr. William Trickett was largely attended. Bishop Wood and Chaplain Brazier officiated. The deceased had been here 11 months, superintending the construction of the breakwater and other works, and he died suddenly of heart failure.

NEW WAR LOAN.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

A bill to authorise the raising and expending of £50,000,000 for war purposes was introduced in the House of Representatives to-night by the Treasurer (Sir John Forrest). He said this was the fourth war loan appropriation bill. The first was for £20,000,000, the second for £18,000,000, and the third for £50,000,000, making a total of £88,000,000, of which approximately £82,000,000 had been raised. The war expenditure out of loan and revenue up to June 30, 1918, was estimated at £214,880,673, less £2,129,164 sinking fund. The expenditure out of loans would be £189,045,757, and the balance out of revenue. Included in the estimate of expenditure out of loan was an amount of £26,000,000 due to the British Government for the maintenance of Australian troops at the front and the supply to them of munitions. The estimated expenditure by the British Government in respect of the A.I.F. to June, 1917, was £28,500,000, and to June 30, 1918, a further sum of £29,750,000. The total loans which must be raised in 1917-18 would amount to £64,065,922. Even if this was all borrowed during that period there would still be about £27,250,000 due to the British Government, which it was not intended to pay during this financial year. The amount required for loan expenditure if everything was paid would be about £91,000,000. Parliament was, however, asked for only £50,000,000 authorisation at the present time. It was proposed to at once issue the prospectus of another war loan for £20,000,000, maturing on December 15, 1927, two years later than previous war loans.

THE LORD MAYOR'S MEETING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I attended the citizens' (?) meeting held in the Town Hall last night for the purpose of ascertaining who were the "principal commercial and professional men of Sydney" who were foolhardy enough to sign the requisition to the Mayor calling such a meeting.

I found that such a statement by the Lord Mayor was misleading in that, as far as I could see, there were neither any leading nor professional men present, and, instead of its being representative of the "citizens of Sydney," it could be more correctly described as a "strikers' meeting," pure and simple.

If this was called for the purpose of giving the Lord Mayor an opportunity of intimating that he was about to break from the comparatively good company which had tolerated him for some time, and to rehabilitate himself with his old friends, the Labour party, it was a gigantic success. A very large portion of the time was taken up by him in defending his position with the Government, and occasionally uttering what were nothing short of disloyal sentiments.

There are two Biblical statements which come into my mind as I write, which I think fairly well express the position the Lord Mayor now finds himself in. One of them refers to the Ethiopian with regard to his skin, and the leopard regarding his spots, while the other speaks of a certain quadruped "returning to his wallowing in the mire."

With regard to the presence of two leading Anglican clergymen, I can only say that it is unfortunate that men in their position should countenance such a meeting, because in doing so they are associating themselves with I.W.W. sentiments, and also with the extreme actions of the strikers in their attempts at murder, etc.

Had the meeting been one held in the slum areas of London, Liverpool, or Glasgow, where the people are downtrodden by capitalists and forced to bring up their families on something under a weekly wage of £1, they could be commended for their endeavours to raise the status of the working class. These conditions, however, do not apply here: what they are doing at present is to encourage a number of men who, instead of giving loyal service to their employers, be it Government or private, carry out loyally the tenets of the I.W.W. and work, on every good authority, two days per week for six days' pay.

The most ridiculous feature of the whole meeting was the fact that those assembled there were clamouring for a conciliatory settlement, when, as a matter of fact, such a settlement is in their own hands, and could be effected in ten minutes were they to return to their old employment, which they left of their own accord.

I left before the meeting was finally closed, and was very pleased indeed, on reading the report of the meeting in the "Herald" this morning, to find that before it closed "God Save the King" was sung, because I felt, while there, that it was just possible that this would be omitted, and not unintentionally.

Sept. 6. AUSTRALIAN SCOTSMAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I quote the following from the reported speech of the Lord Mayor at the Town Hall meeting last night:—"I would like to say that this meeting was called in answer to a requisition by business people who believed that the preservation of their interests and their city was more important than the preservation of any Government."

Such a belief sufficiently stamps these so-called business people as selfish disloyalists, and the reasons given should of themselves have been ample reason for the Chief Magistrate of the city declining to call such a meeting or preside over it.

The active advocacy of the point of view of such persons will cause all loyal citizens grave dissatisfaction with the present occupant of the Mayoral chair.

Sept. 6. I am, etc., CIVIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It would provide interesting reading for many were a list furnished of those who refused to sign the requisition for Mr. Meagher's meeting of strikers and their sympathisers, although it was presented as emanating from an entirely different source. It was presented to me as coming from Mr. S. Hordern, who "was to be chairman or to occupy a seat on the platform." I declined to add my name, as I could only see in it an endeavour to embarrass the Government in the performance of its duties.

Sept. 6. I am, etc., SHOPKEEPER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a loyal employee of the Government I made it my business to be present at the public meeting at the Town Hall on Wednesday night for the express purpose of seeing who attended same, and with my knowledge of those on strike, as seen in their processions, etc., I can honestly say that 95 per cent. of those present were strikers, together (in some cases) with their wives, etc.; or, in other words, it was purely a strikers' meeting. Trusting the Government will remain firm to the position they have already taken up,

I am, etc., A LOYAL EMPLOYEE.

Sept. 6.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Dean of Newcastle, in his speech at the Town Hall last night, launched an indictment against employers generally for their "lamentable want of idealism."

The Dean has interfered in this strike from probably the highest motives, but I think that when any man does interfere in such a serious trouble as we have at present, and makes such statements as he has done at a great public meeting, he should not only know his facts better but be prepared to make some practical suggestion towards securing the object in view.

If the Dean has kept himself conversant with every day events during the last few years he should know that our Arbitration Courts have taken in hand the regulation of wages of most employees, and this system has consequently killed any idealism that employers may have possessed. He ought to know that when some employers did give their good men an advance in wages, awards were very soon afterwards secured to bring the poor workman up to the same standard, and if the public of New South Wales to-day is not aware that one man is as good as another in the sight of the Arbitration Court, the employers at least have been made to realise this.

I can scarcely think that the Dean can be ignorant of the conditions existing to-day under the Arbitration Act.

Again, if he knows anything about co-operation, he ought to know that several firms in England—one particularly large firm in Newcastle-on-Tyne I have especially in view—had to discontinue their co-operative system on account of the antagonism of the union leaders.

This week's mail has also brought me a letter from one of the leading men in England who had adopted this system with success, but he now says that he has had to drop it, but hopes that the Government will take action in regard to legalising the co-operative system when things become normal.

As an employer, I can prove from my own experience that co-operation is very much appreciated, equally by the employees as by the employer, when it becomes properly known and realised.

Provided the Dean of Newcastle can secure a written promise from the president and secretary of two of the principal unions, which I will name, that they are prepared to allow the profit sharing or bonus system to be accepted by members of the two unions in question, I am prepared to adopt the scheme with from 70 to 100 of the employees, and I shall accordingly welcome the Dean's assistance in securing this guarantee in the matter, and I have no doubt other employers will be quite glad to do the same under a similar system of guarantee from the union leaders with their men. I am, etc.,

SPORTING.

RANDWICK TRAINING NOTES.

BIPLANE'S BRILLIANCY.

The New Zealander, Biplane, galloped with great brilliancy at Randwick yesterday morning, but his compatriot, Kilboy—who bodily looks well, was restricted to cantering exercise, and the blank looks of his admirers foretold the fact that all is not well with last year's Derby winner. It subsequently transpired that one of his joints has shown signs of weakness since Tuesday's gallop, and the horse is also suffering from intermittent rheumatism in the near shoulder; but his owner, Mr. E. Luttrell, is optimistic about Kilboy overcoming these troubles. He will not run the horse in the Chelmsford Stakes on Saturday, and will not decide concerning future engagements until after the Spring Stakes, which has been fixed for Kilboy's first run this season. Upon his form in that race will depend his running in The Metropolitan or Melbourne Cup.

To the surprise of early risers, there was a white frost at Randwick, an unusual happening in September, and the work began at 5.45 on the outer half of the course proper, on which the best watch performance was made by Biplane, who, with a lightweight up, gave Immortel a start from the seven-furlongs post, and finished level with him. Biplane ran the distance in 1m 30s. His countryman, The Toff, also went wonderfully well. His task was nine furlongs, and he was assisted over the last five by Red Rock. He ran the nine furlongs in 1m 57½s, the last seven furlongs in 1m 31½s. Sasanof, Sweet Corn, and Shrill, who are all trained by Jones, were on the easy list. Murray Hobbs sent Killien and Kilfinn over six furlongs, which they ran nicely in 1m 20s, and the Newcastle trainer, Inkpen, had his lot on pacing work. Theovil, who, until a few days ago was trained by Inkpen, beat Chid by two lengths over a mile in 1m 46s, the last six furlongs in 1m 20s. Theovil is an English horse—a big, and exceptionally well-balanced bay. He brought a reputation with him from the north, but may be a bad worker, for his gallop with Chid was nothing to boast about.

Pah King went satisfactorily over seven furlongs in 1m 32¼s, carrying a big weight, and finishing with a bit in hand. Baltic Sea decisively defeated Cagou over a similar distance in 1m 33s. There was not much to choose between Sornette and Hecate at the end of a mile, run in 1m 48s, and Manna beat Lady Comely over six furlongs in 1m 21s. At the end of seven furlongs, run in 1m 34½s, Mehi King and Merimee were going comfortably, and Two Blues did a strong working mile in 1m 50s, while Greg did a working gallop over a furlong further. Petalster slipped over half a mile in 52s, and a stout nine furlong working gallop went down to Wallace Isinglass and Prince Viridis; while Lambourne and Amber Rose slipped over five furlongs in 1m 5½s. Kandos and Franco were doing easy work, and Faithful Laddie ran six furlongs in 1m 22s, while Lothian and Marvano could not do much better than 1m 33s for seven furlongs. Wirrilla got over six furlongs in 1m 22½s, and Amazonia four furlongs in 53s. Ersilla ran seven furlongs in 1m 33s, and Percolator a mile in 1m 48½s.

T. Scully removed Red Cardinal's shoes and sent him with Cetigne, heavily shod, over a mile, and Cetigne, who finished well, won by a length in 1m 46s. STORE ALIGHT.

ANOTHER FIRE AT MILLER'S POINT.

A big blaze, the second to happen within a fortnight, occurred at Miller's Point yesterday, when a large shed on Tyser's wharf, containing copra, was, with the contents, severely damaged by fire and water.

The structure, which was a two-storied building of galvanised iron, was owned by the Sydney Harbour Trust, was about 150ft long by 50ft wide, and contained 600 tons of copra belonging to Messrs. W. R. Carpenter, Ltd., mercantile brokers, of Bond-street, city, and 400 tons belonging to Burns, Philp, Ltd. The store was situated on the wharf alongside which the sunken steamer Morinda was lying.

When the brigades arrived they found smoke issuing from all parts of the building, and the whole structure appeared to be alight.

Later the naval water-boat Ripple "stood by" to offer assistance. The men from the brigade, under Chief-officer Sparkes, assisted by Second-officer Jackson, Third-officer Watson, District-officer Grimmond, and Salvage-officer Cox, surrounded the shed and attacked the blaze from all points. They had four motors at work.

The firemen working on the lee side of the building were at times driven back by the fumes from the burning copra, which almost choked them. They persevered in their efforts, and after about an hour and a half's hard work the brigade had the outbreak under control.

The wharfs around were stacked with copra, and the neighbouring sheds were also well filled with copra and other highly inflammable goods. It required the whole attention of the brigade to prevent the flames from spreading.

A party of volunteer workers from Grenfell set to work and carried copra from the wharf to a place of safety.

A great part of the copra was destroyed by fire, and the portion that is left will have to be "reconditioned." The total value of all that was in the shed was about £30,000. Both Messrs. W. R. Carpenter and Messrs. Burns, Philp's, property was covered by insurance. The shed was severely damaged, and part of the roof was burnt off.

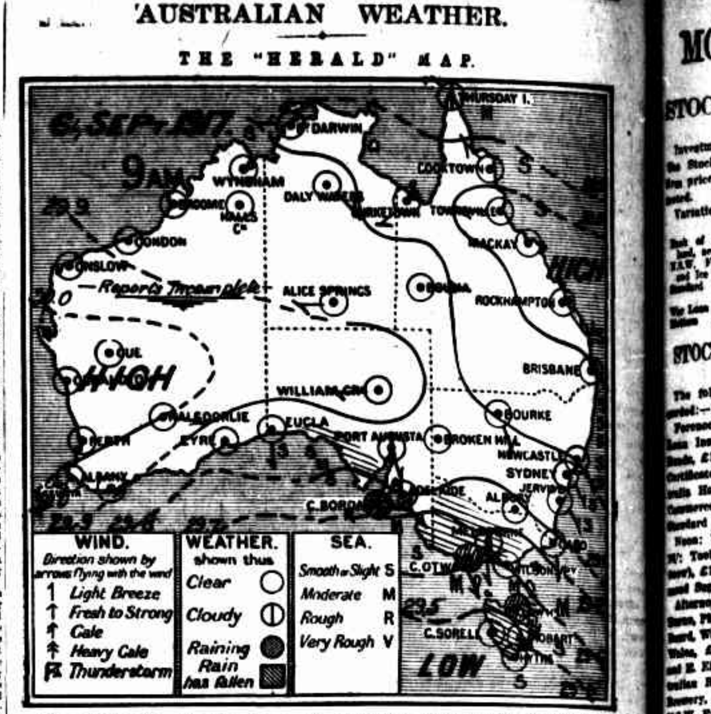

FOOD PRICES.

Yesterday the Necessary Commodities Commission allowed an application in regard to the price of salt to stand over till next week. The application was one to have imported salt excluded from the proclaimed price.

The inquiry into the price of cheese has been adjourned till September 21.

AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The eastern high pressure still remains stationary over the north Tasman Sea, with its centre about Norfolk Island, while its western isobar extends westward and northward to Port Darwin. This stagnation has retarded the easterly progress of the Antarctic disturbance, which still extends from the southern island of New Zealand to the Leeuwin. The central barometric readings, which are situated between Hobart and the Bluff, have gained a little in values since Wednesday.

The western high pressure has made a considerable advance eastward, but owing to the absence of data from Western Australia, we cannot speak about its intensity.

Fine weather may be expected generally except for an isolated thunder-shower, or two; westerly winds.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally, westerly winds over the southern ocean; gales around the Leeuwin.

SHEARERS' STRIKE.

WENTWORTH, Thursday.

Shearers at Nulla woolshed struck work yesterday over a small difference of opinion as to the price of ration sheep during shearing. Nulla is probably the largest shed in the district, the whole of the Lake Victoria sheep being shorn there. Mr. J. B. Armstrong, managing director for the executors, offered the men ration sheep at £1 per head, or at 4d per pound. The men thought they ought to get it at 3d. The rouseabouts and other attendants at the shearing board have been kept on for the time being.

A COWARDLY ASSAULT.

ADELAIDE, Thursday.

A brutal assault was perpetrated on a young domestic servant at Unley Park, a suburb of Adelaide, on Wednesday night. According to her story, she was walking home at about 11 o'clock, when a strange man accosted her and demanded her money. She handed him her purse, when he struck her on the head and rendered her unconscious. A neighbour found the girl lying in the gutter with her head badly battered and her face covered with blood. She was removed to the hospital.

FIRE AT ERSKINEVILLE.

A fire broke out in the premises of the Biturine Layers, Ltd., distillers and manufacturing chemists, Flora-street, Erskineville.

The premises are an extensive block of buildings used for the treatment of coal tar and its by-products.

When the fire brigade arrived the distillery and chemical portions of the premises were well alight. Part of the building was used as a bulk petrol store, and contained a considerable quantity of petrol and kerosene. Near the petrol store was a big still, containing thousands of gallons of tar, and around this the fire burned fiercely. The top of the still was blown off, and then a critical few minutes ensued, but the firemen's efforts resulted in checking the flames.

The fire completely gutted the biturine distillery and chemical works, and destroyed its contents, consisting of chemicals. Part of the main building was damaged by smoke and water. The damage is partially covered by insurance.

A cable room on the railway line was destroyed, and the signal wires and embankments were damaged.

FERRY FARES.

The Mosman council has resolved strongly to protest against the proposal to raise the fares in connection with the Sydney ferries, and to invite the co-operation of the North Sydney, Willoughby, Lane Cove, Manly, and Kuring-gai councils, in joining a deputation to the Acting-Premier to protest against the adoption of the Commissioners' report, to urge upon the Government the necessity of appointing an independent inquiry and to point out that the Commissioner has not conducted the inquiry according to the instructions given by the Government.

SOLDIERS' CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

MELBOURNE, Thursday.

At the meeting of the Federal Council of the Australian Red Cross Society on Monday it was stated that a cabled requisition had been received from the Red Cross Commissioner at Cairo for tinned fruit, jelly crystals, milk, cocoa and milk, custard powder, old linen, books, and pyjamas. A sample box out of 25,000, which are to be shipped for Australian soldiers in hospital on Christmas Day, was approved by the council. The box is a wooden one decorated with Australian native flowers, and contains a pipe, tobacco, chocolate, sweets, Christmas card, etc.

FINANCIAL.

PROFIT SHARING.

"R." writes:—

Sir,—In these times of strike turmoil, a solution leading towards future industrial peace should receive careful consideration. I, with no doubt others, was particularly impressed with a remark of Mr. E. S. Pearl, general manager of Schweppes, Ltd., in Australia, when referring to the trouble at the company's works ("S. M. Herald," 5/9/'17). To quote Mr. Pearl: "However, with employees who are shareholders and who have been for years in the service of the company, the business was carried on and all demands were supplied."

Now, without questioning the natural loyalty of those employees to their employer, the fact also is manifest that any cessation of business affects them as shareholders, and it is to their interest to keep the wheels of industry moving. The more one ponders on the above the more evident is the benefits to both sides of making employees shareholders.

Profit-sharing is a palliative that, however, has its limitations.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION.

POSITION OF FARMERS.

Mr. Robert Kerr writes:—

Sir,—I notice under this heading in your valued columns of this date a reply to a correspondent, "F.W.W.," to the effect that a contractor is liable to pay compensation to men employed by a subcontractor where such sub-contractor is carrying out work for the purpose of the trade or business of the principal contractor. In this connection I would beg to point out that your reply is incomplete and might be misleading to country readers, in that it does not include the proviso under section 8 of the Act, specifically exempting farmers in respect to agricultural work undertaken by contractors providing and using machinery driven by mechanical power, as follows:—"Provided that, where the contract relates to threshing, ploughing, or other agricultural work, and the contractor provides and uses machinery driven by mechanical power for the purposes of such work, he and he alone shall be liable under this Act to pay compensation to any workman employed by him on such work."

The correspondent who asked the question referred to was not a farmer, but the point is interesting nevertheless.

"W. W."—The actual earnings, based on what he was getting at the time of the accident.

WAR-TIME PROFITS.

THE AMERICAN SCHEME.

The United States war-time profits scheme is much more lenient than that proposed in the Commonwealth. It is as follows:—

EXCESS PROFITS.

4 per cent. to 15 per cent.	12 per cent.
15 per cent. to 25 per cent.	16 per cent.
25 per cent. to 50 per cent.	20 per cent.
50 per cent. to 75 per cent.	25 per cent.
75 per cent. to 100 per cent.	30 per cent.
100 per cent. to 150 per cent.	35 per cent.
Over 150 per cent.	40 per cent.

This, of course, means 12 per cent. of the 15 per cent., and so forth, which is a very small thing indeed compared with our 50 per cent. and 75 per cent. of the aggregate excess profits less exemptions.

"W.G.E."—The size of the limited company makes no difference, nor does the fact that the directors are working directors.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

It was expected that salmon prices would have been available yesterday, but it is problematical whether the usual practice of announcing prices before the arrival of the fish will be followed. If prices are announced they will rule only according to conditions. Delivery is usually spread over three months, and in those three months there may be changes in freight and exchange. Furthermore, up to the present freight space has not been arranged. A fair business was done in groceries yesterday in all bread and butter lines. A number of the storemen have returned to work. Others would like to go back, but they are not wanted. The railways are taking all that the grocers ask them. Coastal trade is also rapidly approaching normal.

The tea market was dull yesterday, and very little business was done. There were buyers for cheap tea, but there was little desire to purchase high-grade tea. Cables from Colombo stated that at the sales on Tuesday American and Russian buyers were operating freely. Medium brokens were firm at late rates, common and fine brokens showed an advance of a halfpenny, and leaf teas were a penny dearer.

Hardware houses were informed yesterday that the railways would accept heavy material such as bar iron and galvanised iron for transport. Within the next two or three days the houses will clear off all orders for heavy goods which have been accumulating, and then the trade will resume its normal character. The ordinary daily orders are of small volume, the people waiting for the end of the strike before buying anything beyond bare necessaries.

Oils were steady yesterday. A parcel of Meggitt's Australian raw and boiled, 350 cases in all, sold at 6/4 and 6/6 for October delivery, subject to the seller obtaining delivery from the manufacturers. Castor oil was also in demand, among transactions being 100 cases at 5/.

Business was done in caustic soda, 28 tons being procured at £65. Advices from the United States quoted £61/10/ c.i.f. and e., with shipment as soon as possible. G grade resin sold at £32.

Oregon timber has been advanced 5/, and is now quoted at 35/ per hundred. The previous rate was 18/, and this was considered high. The increase has been made because of the scarcity of freight from the West Coast of America.

HOMEBUSH STOCK SALES.

SHEEP.

ANOTHER FALL IN VALUES.

Monday's quotations in the sheep market were lower than last week's exceptionally high prices, and yesterday the market was from 1/ to 2/ lower than the ruling rates on Monday. It is now much at the rates prevailing before the strike. In other respects the market is assuming its normal position. There was a penning yesterday of 12,642 sheep and lambs from 45 owners, representative of many of the principal sheep-breeding stations in the State. There was also a good attendance of buyers, and a fair amount of competition was forthcoming, with a result that the sales were carried out in a brisk manner, and the whole of the pens cleared shortly after lunch. The quality of the sheep was good. Merinos predominated in numbers, but there were also some pens of prime crossbreds. There was a shortage, rather, of lambs, but of those penned the quality was good. Most of the sheep carried heavy woolly skins; yet there were a few shorn sheep in the consignments. Among the crossbreds was one choice lot of 194 wethers, which sold to 54/6, and averaged 49/6. They came from Jas. Wilson, of Griffith. Included in the pennings of merinos was a very fine line of 545 wethers from the executors of T. Walker, and trucked at Warren. These sold to 48/, and averaged 44/3. Merino ewes from the same owner made to 38/6.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From W. V. Gibbs, of Trangie, xbd h to 41/11; from Mrs. M. A. Gibbs, of Trangie, w to 37/5; from G. A. Moloney, of Trangie, e to 39/; from estate of late Anne Cameron, of Trangie, xbd w to 39/5; from R. Wilson, of Trangie, xbd h to 37/; from W. J. M'Culloch, of Walgett, w to 40/; from M. A. Bolger, of Warren, shorn wethers to 32/5; from Goorianawa station, Coonamble, xbd e to 43/6.

CATTLE.

MARKET STEADY.

While the sheep market continues to rise and fall, the cattle market remains firm and without material alteration. It has done so now for some time, and yesterday there was no exception to the rule. There was a yarding of over 1000 head of cattle, including all classes, the general quality of which was quite up to the average. In fact, there was a number of really prime bullocks included in the yarding, and these sold well. Thirty-eight owners were represented on the consignment notes, and the cattle came from almost all centres of the State. The attendance of buyers was quite up to the average. Competition was good, and yard after yard was sold quickly. The highest price obtained at the sales was for a couple of yards of bullocks, 16 in all, from Alf. Richardson, of Trangie. They sold to £33/1/, and averaged £28/8/7, while another line of 19 bullocks from J. Smith, of Collarenebri, made to £30, and averaged £27/15/. Nearly the whole of the heavy bullocks sold yesterday realised well over £20 per head.

Among the principal sales were the following:—From Goorianawa station, at Coonamble, 32 bullocks to £26/1/, avg £23/15/; from H. Bayliss, Collarenebri, 30 bullocks to £24, avg £20/11/10; from J. G. Nowlan, of Grenfell, 22 steers to £20/8/, avg £19/16/2; from W. F. Stephenson, of Geurie, 6 bullocks to £25/2/, avg £20/5/2/; from Walhallow Estate, Breeza, 30 steers to £21, avg £19/17/; from Midkin station, at Moree, 30 bullocks to £20, avg £19/13/8; from Edwin Smith, of Dungog, 28 bullocks to £21/15/, avg £20/11/6; from C. Mackinnon, of Trangie, 24 bullocks to £28/16/, avg £28/12/8; from Alfred Richardson, of Trangie, 16 bullocks to £33/1/, avg £28/8/7; from J. K. MINING.

BARRIERS FIRMER.

Fair interest was paid to mining shares on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and, save for the ever shifting Westonias, prices displayed a firmer trend. Hampden recovered 3d to 27/3, while other copper propositions were quietly firm. The Edna May gold enterprises were all weaker. Deeps eased to 29/ and Consols were lower at 19/9. Centrals declined to 25/3 on the receipt of the following message from the mine:—"No. 3 level, east drive, off south crosscut: Drive on hanging-wall section, 20/, over 7ft. No. 1 east winze: 4ft wide, value 35/. Stopes, east, off No. 1 west rise: 4ft wide, value 30/. South, off No. 2 west rise: 4ft 6in wide, value 30/. No. 4 level, west drive to 38ft: In ore 4ft 6in wide, worth 20/."

Morning Star, a Victorian concern, lacked support at the reduced price of 7/, and bids were plentiful for Queensland gold ventures.

Barriers held out on decidedly higher levels. Norths advanced to 53/, and "Hills" recovered to 47/. Junction North were pushed to 11/10½ in sympathy with the stronger tendency on the southern Exchanges. Tin enterprises were in good hands. Ratrut rallied to 17/, and Ronpibon hardened to 20/3. The usual flutter of Vegetable Creeks was persisted in at slightly lower values.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

LONDON, Sept. 5.

Mining shares to-day were without change.

NOTES.

After a visit to the mine, the directors of the Abercrombie Copper Mines, Ltd., have decided to restart production on Monday next, by which time it is expected that the full complement of men will be available. In view of the fact that the whole output of copper is sold to the British Munition Department, special efforts have been made to ensure constant production.

The general manager of Mt. Lyell Mining Company, Mr. Robert Sticht, has cabled from America that investigation by three different experts has proved beyond any doubt that the ore from the Mount Read and Rosebery mines is splendidly adapted for treatment by the electrolytic process. It will be recalled that Mr. Sticht went to the United States in March last in order to supervise tests with a parcel of ore from the mines named.

Mr. G. H. Blakemore has consented to accept a seat on the board of the Hockstetter Gold Fields, Ltd.

Our Gympie correspondent states that, owing to the shortage in the supply of coal, the Scottish Gympie gold mines have been compelled to close down.

For obvious reasons the directors of the Briseis Tin and General Mining Company, Tasmania, decided some months ago to alter the method of disposing of the company's tin. Formerly the tin was shipped to London and sold there on arrival, but, according to advice from London the directors have now made arrangements which will enable them to sell the tin in Australia as long as the present conditions regarding freight and insurance continue. So far the company has been able to obtain relatively better prices than would have been realised had the old method of selling been continued.
